IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

LOSS OF VESSELS AT VERA CRUZ.

PROCLAMATION BY GEN. FOREY

The French Forces to Have Left for Mexico City on the 21st or 22d of February.

Preparations for Occupying the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

Various Interesting Details from Mexico.

By the arrival at this port of the Columbia we receive interesting details of Mexican news, carried to Cuba by the French dispatch steamer, which left Vera Cruz on the 17th of February. Several ships and lives had been lost in Sacrificio Bay and along the coast, by a violent storm that took place at the beginning of the past month of February. The following are the names of the ships wrecked: The American bark Sherwood, with a crew of nine men, three of whom were saved and the rest perished; the Mexican cutter Esperanza, with a crew of six men, two of whom were saved and four perished; the English bark Pepyon, the whole of the crew saved; Mexican cutter Adelante, all hands saved; a boat that was sent with five men in aid of the above-named vessels met with a similar fate. Of its crew two were saved and the rest lost their lives; two French transport vessels, an American bark and a Mexican cutter were also damaged.

We learn from Vera Cruz, dated Feb. 17th, that by the arrival of the convoy from Orizaba in that city on the 11th of the same month it was known that Gen. Forey would leave the last-named place for his expedition against the Capital on the 21st. On account of his approaching departure from Orizaba, Gen. Forey has addressed the following proclamation to the Mexicans:

PROCLAMATION OF GEN. FOREY.

MEXICANS: After the long sojourn which the corps of expedition under my command has had to make in its camp, it is about to leave and march for Mexico.

Although its sojourn has been serious, and although it has had the appearance of repose, it has not been time lost. It must have made you reflect, I doubt not, upon the falsehoods of those who have an interest in pointing us out as your enemies, and to whom the valiant soldiers that I command have given a complete denial by the order and discipline which have not failed to reign in their ranks.

If we are your enemies, we Frenchmen who respect your persons, your families, your property, then what must be those Mexicans, your fellow countrymen who pretend to be your friends, who pillage your property, who, after raising private individuals by unexampled exactions, ruin likewise the public property, for no other end than that of preserving a power of which they make no deplorable a use.

Mex. Mexicans, you must have discovered in our actions the sincerity and loyalty of our words, when, in the name of the Emperor, I declared to you solemnly what I again repeat to you to-day, that the soldiers of France have not come here to impose upon you a Government; that they have no other mission—be it well understood—after they have dragged by force from him who pretends to be the expression of the national will, the just reparation of our wrongs, which we have not been able to obtain by negotiations; they have no other mission but that of consulting the national wish as to the form of Government that it desires, and as to the election of the men who appear to it most worthy as well to ensure good order and liberty at home, its dignity and independence abroad.

When this task has been accomplished, there will remain to the French army the obligation to aid the Government chosen by you to march resolutely in the way of progress, so that in spite of those who despise Mexico, you may succeed in forming a nation which shall have nothing to envy in others.

Then, those of us who have not contributed with their blood to the accomplishment of so noble an enterprise, will remark in the ships of France and return to their country—happy and proud if the great duty which they have fulfilled has had for result the regeneration of your country.

FOREY, General of Division,
Senator, Commander-in-Chief of the Expeditionary Mexican Army.

ORIZABA, Feb. 12, 1863.

The Diario, of Santiago de Cuba, contains a letter from its correspondent at Vera Cruz, dated Feb. 17, from which we make the following extracts:

"The French in order to take Puebla are waiting for the reinforcements, which we expect every day, and which, although in France they are said to be 6,000 soldiers, I have certain information exceed 10,000, from the preparations that are being made here to quarter them, feed them, and put them under tent for the three days which they have only to remain here.

"On the 5th of February there left the Bay of Sacrificios, a French man-of-war, with three frigates, James de LA GRAVIERE was in the former, and intend on his arrival to have a conference with the Mexican Gen. Almonte, at Jamapa, near Carmen, before taking his course to Mazatitlan. There also goes with him as employes of the Custom-house, M. GERMAIN LAGUAN, who, although French, speaks Spanish well; the American Consul of Mazatitlan, and the Mexican Lieut.-Col. RAMONIN. The first named will be over the Custom-house; the second goes for business, and the third as political Governor.

"The Spanish Consul at last succeeded in getting restored to liberty two Spaniards, LOYAS and ZORRILLA, taken prisoners at Tampico.

"The Chasseurs of Vincennes have left for the interior, and an order has come from the Emperor to appointed RANGEL as Minister.

"D. JUAN ROMA, although a Spaniard, is a citizen of the United States; he was taken prisoner near Orizaba, and then sentenced to death for being found carrying letters for JUAREZ. The Mexican Belles of that city implored pardon for him, and the extreme penalty has been commuted to that of transportation to Martinique. He arrived on the 10th at Vera Cruz, and on the 11th was incarcerated in the Castle of Ulloa.

"On the same day, the 11th, there arrived a convoy from Orizaba, with seventy and odd wagons, as far as Tejeria; but nothing was said about the departure of FOREY from that place. BAZAINE's division has been obliged to station itself on the hill of San Juan, somewhat less than two miles, between Puebla and Mexico, on the left of the road.

"Gen. COUSSOUROU is at San Martin Tecomulcan, with 1,500 good soldiers.

"On the 15th the European mail arrives, and then leave in the convoy the convalescents and those officers and soldiers happen to be here, although they leave more than 120 sick in the hospital and a garrison composed of negro marines from Martinique, and the adventurers commanded by the Swiss STRANSKY.

"From the island of Carmen they sent fifty men to the mouth of the Coatzacoalcos, which seem to fast the place that LA GRAVIERE had superior orders to occupy; it being believed by many that the Americans were assisting the Mexicans with warlike equipments which they imported as was supposed by way of Mazatitlan. A French gunboat proceeded to the last named place, the commander of which had a conference with the inhabitants. Those who accompanied the Admiral were of opinion that the place ought to be occupied, but he had orders to blockade only Coatzacoalcos and not to land any troops. From the information received it is more than probable they will hereafter occupy that place.

"In addition to the above the Diario of Havana gives the following particulars from various sources:

"They write from Orizaba to the Independiente of Jalapa dated January 23d that sixteen pieces of artillery had left that place, escorted by Zouaves, in the direction of Palmar. The same letter adds:

"The Minister of War in France has sent orders that wine should be given only to the sick on account of the dearness of transport.

"Until the beginning of next month all the forces of the French army will not be able to discontinue leaving here, and it is said for certain that there will only remain a garrison of 500 man, because they want all their soldiers for the attack on Puebla.

"Gen. GALVEZ will remain to guard the road between here and Vera Cruz.

"The Mexican guerrilla, BERMUDEZ, who, it will be remembered, had ventured as far as Perote, escorting, as was said, the United States Consul, Mr. MAX Grickhine, was sentenced to death and executed in the fortress of San Carlos.

In the Independiente of the 6th ult., we find the following:

"Citizen Hermanos Domenzain has informed the Governor of the State of an attack which he made on the enemy's convoy which left Soledad on the 26th for Camaron. Domenzain's force consisted of 110 men, infantry and cavalry. The attack commenced at Esquinzon and although the force that escorted the convoy was more numerous than that of Domenzain, the fighting lasted from 6 o'clock in the morning until the evening, and there were taken from the convoy, 3 rifles, a sword, a pistol, 3 horses, 22 loads of salt, of 3 arrobas each, 2 loads of Camden tobacco, 2 boxes of paper, 11 cows, a mule without a load and an ox taken with salt. The losses of our guerrillas were: Capt. Hanna, wounded in one hand; First Sergt. JUAN LARA, wounded in the leg; a private killed, and two others wounded, besides the brave Captain Fuentes being his horse, which was killed in the heat of the action.

"The losses of the enemy must have been much more numerous, because he occupied the centre of the road in a greater mass than the our soldiers, and because the latter were in ambuscade.

"It is assumed that it is intended to establish a mint in Puebla, in which there will be made into coin all the bells that are in various parts without being issued to account, so that it may circulate as a commercial medium. We do not know for certain if it is a settled thing, but if it is, we approve of it, as organs of public opinion."

The same paper gives the following from the Estrella Oriental of Puebla:

By dint of patience and study, citizen Antonio Anzaneza, chief of artillery at Zacatecas, has succeeded in realizing his idea of making incendiary musket balls. Having been already tried in Mexico, the Government has ordered 5,000 to be made immediately, which will be sent to do execution upon our aggressors.

It is said that soon there will be begun a line of fortifications à barbette, which will be a second exterior line after those which are now almost concluded; we have not heard of it officially, but at any rate we believe that it will be very useful, for forming a work of covered way, we see in eloquent relation, and much without being so ourselves. We believe that with a large number of laborers it can be finished in a few days.

The Independiente believes that the decisive moment is at last approaching. There is no doubt it says, that the French have not moved in search of provisions, nor with the mere object of extending their lines. The principal part of their force is now concentrated in Palmar; they are about to receive their field artillery. All their preparations announce that an attack is close at hand.

The Narcodo Imperial of the 13th says that Gen. FOREY would leave Orizaba on the 21st, and that the operations against Puebla would commence, therefore, shortly.

The Pensamiento of the 1st ult. says that on the evening before there expired, in Orizaba, Gen. HAHO, victim of a long and painful sickness. He had arrived there about two months previous from Vera Cruz, at which port he landed on his return from California, where he had been banished by President JUAREZ.

On the 19th of January, Gen. ALMONTE gave a splendid banquet at his house to Gen. FOREY, and in the evening of the following day a very brilliant ball, which was numerously attended.

A nephew of JACRIZA's has arrived at Orizaba from Paris.

Gen. ORTEGA, as Minister of War and Marine, with reference to the dispatch from Gen. CARVAJAL, says that the National Guard of Tlacotepec took, near Palmar, 500 mules belonging to the French, which have been turned over, after being paid for, to JUAREZ's army.

From Zacatecas, there have left for Mexico 200 artillerymen, with 11 mortars and 9 cannon of large calibre, to be employed in the defence of the capital.

According to the news brought to Vera Cruz by the French steamer that arrived on the 13th, the reinforcement for the army had not arrived at Martinique, which would delay operations against Puebla, notwithstanding what was said to the contrary.

Mexico, Central America, New-Granada and the United States.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The question of the day that most concerns the future interest of the world is the integrity of the great American Republic. This is clear to intelligent, patriotic minds; hence it is plain that the rebellion of the South must be made to submit to National influence at every sacrifice, and the Union held intact.

A glance at the map of the Western Hemisphere must remind us that, although the attention of the National Government must first be directed to our domestic troubles, the next most important interest of the country is the preservation of the Republican fence that surrounds us; or, in other words, foreign Powers must not be permitted to gain advantages on this Continent, upon the principle that "when honest men quarrel, the d—l goes to dinner."

It is a well-known fact that the Emperor of the French is now laboring to take advantage of our home troubles to force himself into Mexico, not only for the territorial advantages it will afford him in a political point of view, but also for the cotton supplies that possessions on the Pacific Coast of Mexico would bring him, and, in this important particular, render him and other Powers independent of the United States. Once firmly established in Mexico, his active attention will be directed to the subject of interoceanic communication across the Isthmus, and as the interest of the world is master of all obstacles in its way, we may safely assume that a canal will be cut across it. As one strong European Power cannot take advantages to itself without according some to others, we must assume that France's most powerful ally will come in for a share of American possessions. We will therefore imagine England in possession of Central American territories bounded by both oceans. Then in the event of a war between England and the United States, French influence would not only be with England, but the latter Power could, within fifteen days after the declaration of hostilities, be prepared to blockade Key to privateer five per cent. of the floating commerce of the United States.

Spain, another respectable Power, and in sympathy with the others in opposition to republican institutions, possesses Cuba, St. Domingo and Porto Rico, the three forming an Alligator, with Cuba as the head, looking up the Gulf; while England, in addition to having Central America (as we will suppose) and the Canadas, has Jamaica on the south and the Bermudas on the north of the "Alligator."

This state of affairs granted, can we not say that the United States have become politically confounded? The Monroe Doctrine has not only always been a cardinal point of the creed of the Democratic party, but has become a political necessity of the country.

However, weak the Powers of Mexico, Central America and New-Granada may be, their good friendship and sympathy are much to be desired by the United States. If Mexico, to-day, were at amity with the United States, would not the progress of the French in Mexico be largely accelerated thereby, much to the prejudice of the United States? These powers, though weak, compared to the United States, hold, if friendly to us, the relative position of respectable skirmishing parties sent out in advance of the grand army.

The first step, then, toward the enforcement of the "Monroe doctrine" is the cultivation of the most friendly relations with the American Republics; our colaborers in political creed and sentiment. The writer of this has just seen a letter from an intelligent American resident of New-Granada, which confirms the published accounts of the entire supremacy of the Mosquera Government, and who, as an American, sees the great necessity of the recognition of that Government by the Government of the United States. He represents the Liberal party of that country (the party most in sympathy with our own form of Government) as becoming rapidly alienated from us, and while they confess the greatest admiration for the statesmanship of our able Secretary of State, they deeply complain of the want of sympathy on our part, and are at a loss to understand the reason; and frequently inquire why our Minister has not been instructed to present his credentials, as has already been done by the French and English Ministers.

IMPORTANT REBEL NEWS.

The Indianola Reported Blown Up by the Rebels.

The National Gunboats in Lake Providence.

An Attack Daily Expected on Fort Hudson.

THE RECENT AFFAIR IN TENNESSEE.

The Richmond Dispatch and Enquirer of the 6th inst., which have been received, contain several items of interest. The Dispatch states that the gunboat Indianola, recently captured from the Yankees, was blown up last Tuesday night by the rebels, and her guns fell into the hands of the Federals. The Queen of the West left in such a hurry as to leave part of her crew on shore.

A later dispatch states that the Indianola is not destroyed, and that they are raising her. The following telegram, however, seems to explain the first statement:

MOBILE, Thursday, March 5.

The Jackson Mississippian says the destruction of the Indianola was a most unnecessary and unfortunate affair. The turreted monster proved to be a flat-boat, with sundry fixtures to create deception. She passed Vicksburgh Tuesday night, and the officers, believing she was really a turreted monster, blew the Indianola up, but the guns fell into the hands of the enemy.

AFFAIRS ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

VICKSBURGH, Thursday, March 5.

Commodore Farragut has proclaimed that any parties firing on unarmed vessels shall be hanged; also, persons burning cotton or levying contributions.

The National gunboats are making great destruction on Lake Providence.

An attack is daily expected on Port Hudson by Gen. BANKS' force.

THE REBEL FORCE IN ARKANSAS.

The Jackson Mississippian's correspondent says there are but 2,000 Union troops in Arkansas. Rebel Gens. HOLMES and HINDMAN are at Little Rock, and there is a demand among the rebel troops for their removal, and for fighting Generals to be put in their places.

THE WAR IN TENNESSEE.

The Federals attacked VAN DORN March 1, at Thompson's, near Franklin. He drove them back, and captured a few officers and men. The rebel loss is not yet reported.

The Chattanooga Rebel of the 5th ult. says there were rumors from the front that ROSECRANS has been receiving large reinforcements through Kentucky, in the Counties of Sumner and Wilson. If this be true, his intention is to advance upon Tullahoma. The troops at Nashville will probably make a feint upon Shelbyville. The entire strength of the army at Murfreesboro is estimated at 50,000, and the reinforcements at 30,000. The other bodies of Union troops under ROSECRANS swell the amount to nearly 100,000.

MOBILE, Tuesday, March 3.

A special dispatch, dated McMinnville, yesterday, says Maj. AVERIS, of MORGAN's brigade, with 1,200 men, passed around the Murfreesboro and Nashville Railroad, tearing up the track, and running a train of soldiers over the embankment.

THE LOSS OF THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

The Enquirer has an article on the loss of the Princess Royal. She was fitted out by a Manchester firm, to whom the rebels are under many obligations for past favors. It publishes a manifest of her cargo, which foots up $78,[illegible].

AFFAIRS IN VIRGINIA.

The Post Commissary has been ordered to impress all the extra superfine flour at Petersburgh, allowing the owners $10.50 per barrel. All the superfine flour had been previously impressed.

A Fredericksburgh correspondent of the Enquirer gives the following prices there: Coffee, $6 per pound; sugar, $1 50 per pound; candles, $1 50; beef, 75 cents per pound; peas, $10; butter, $2. All are on half rations.

DOINGS OF THE REBEL CONGRESS.

In the rebel Senate, on the 2d, a resolution was adopted to inquire into the expediency of repealing the resolutions declaring that a neutral flag covers enemies' goods, with the exception of contraband of war.

In the House, a resolution was offered to suspend all business until the Currency and Tax bills are acted upon.

A bill has been introduced into the rebel Senate to place all telegraphic lines under the control of the Postmaster-General.

A Southern Paper Proposes to Restore the Union.

Somewhere in the South is published a paper called the Southern Union, and this sheet, which the minute Confederacy declares is "diminutive in size, circulation and influence, has had the audacity to propose a restoration of the old Union." The Confederacy proceeds to rail at the "diminutive" concern as follows:

"We advise the editor, Mr. MURRAY, to go to New-England, believing him to be unfriendly to the country in which he lives, and that Massachusetts is the only suitable place for him. He is unworthy of a residence in the Confederacy. This sentiment is good, the better for him. Better leave at once and be consistent, before being invited to go. In Massachusetts he will be welcomed by great numbers of people of his own way of thinking, and be made a hero of. He will be feted and feasted, and old and old rich consequence. The 'Conservatives' whom he loves, and not the 'Abolitionists' whom he affects to despise, will do all this for him. There are fools Abolitionists in Massachusetts than Secession sentiment in Georgia. Massachusetts is the very place for him; far more congenial than any Cotton State."

FROM VICKSBURGH AND VICINITY.

CAIRO, Saturday, March 7.

Advices from Vicksburgh to Monday say that a flag of truce came to the Federals on Sunday. The object was unknown. Three thousand men and a dredging-machine were at work on the canal at Yazoo Pass; the expedition was progressing favorably.

Admiral FARRAGUT says that the Indianola and Wat were both sunk in the late engagement.

Sailing of the Jura.

PORTLAND, Me., Sunday, March 8.

The Jura, Capt. ALTON, sailed at 10 o'clock this morning with 40 passengers.

There was a severe northeast snow-storm last night and to-day.

FROM LAKE PROVIDENCE.

Flight of Rebel Inhabitants to the West of Bayou Macon—Curious Appearance of the Country—Southern Scenery—Negroes Flocking to the Army—Their Novelties of Situation in the Swamps—A Black Hero—Their Curiosity for Nonsuitable Soldiers—Signs of Spring—Health of the Army.

HEADQUARTERS SEVENTEENTH ARMY CORPS, LAKE PROVIDENCE, LA., Wednesday, Feb. 25, 1863.

The rebel inhabitants of this place began removing their property from the town nearly two months ago. As far as they crossed the immense cotton-growing country, it was hauled eight miles from the river to the other side of Bayou Macon.

When the station was reached they began to move their household furniture and select their houses, so that when Gen. McARTHUR's division, which was the advance of this army corps, arrived here three weeks ago, to begin the work of opening the new route of communication by cutting the canal from the Mississippi to the lake, nearly all the private residences of the wealthiest inhabitants were tenantless.

On landing at this place—where the relative positions of land and water seem to be reversed; where, in many things, the laws of nature seem to have been ignored; where the surface of the river is the summit of a broad ridge, from which you look down upon the flat country, covered with a dense and gloomy forest of gigantic cypress and oaks, whose boughs are hung with festoons of bold, gray, funeral-looking moss; where the raw and immature looking bank, of only two or three feet in height, is all that restrains the broad and turbid river from bursting in a deluge over towns and plantations—on landing, I say, at such a place, one's first impression would naturally be that such a region might contain many of the monstrosities of nature, but none of its beauties; no limpid lakes, no velvet lawns, no pastoral trees which would convey the impression to the beholder that they were not simply gigantic weeds.

Looking from the river, one feels as though he had migrated to some planet which was yet in its incunctive period,—a planet in its transition state of preparation for man, but now only a fit abode for alligators and saurian monsters.

With such impressions I started, a few hours after my arrival, for a ride out into the country. Our party mounted horse at the steamer's side, and leaving the river rode down a steep little Hill of twenty feet in height. Think of it, ye who are accustomed to see rivers running at the bottom of valleys and not on the summits of ridges! Down hill from the river.

After passing through the muddy little town, above which loomed the huge hulks of the river steamers, as though they threatened to ride over its roofs, our road lay, for five miles, along the bank of Lake Providence. On our right lay the lake, half a mile in width, with waters as clear and blue as Lake Erie; on our left a continuous line of plantations, on many of which were beautiful residences, surrounded by tasteful pleasure-grounds, and just adjacent to groves of arbor vitæ, avenues of glossy-leaved orange and China trees. Long rows of "Japanese palms" lined the paths with their hard, sharp, green leaves, like groups of infantrymen, the front ranks kneeling, with bayonets outthrust, to resist cavalry. Along the banks of the lake, which were grass-grown to the water's edge, grew huge red oaks, and a few live oaks, trailing the moss which hung from their branches to the water. As we got further from the Mississippi, the ground was not more elevated than it was near the river, but grew dryer, because near the river the water soaks through the embankment, and keeps the earth muddy.

As we rode out, we found several regiments of Gen. LOGAN's division, pitching their camps in more beautiful locations than they have had for many a day. The Forty-fifth Illinois, in whose camp we stopped to lunch, had named their camp "Camp Paradise."

Every few minutes we met little groups of negroes who had escaped from their masters on the other side of "Bayou Macon." We stopped to talk to many of these groups. They usually comprised one or two families—men, women and children—who had escaped together. Many of them told us of frightful hardships that they had endured in their endeavors to escape. Two families told us that they had waded across the swamp, six miles in width, which lies on this side of "Bayou Macon," and during the two days—and one night which they had passed in the swamp, they had the greater portion of the time been up to their waists in mud and water, and during that time had had nothing to eat. They were carrying their children mounted on their shoulders, and in this position had carried them through the whole of these fearful two days and night. The black faces of the little creatures looked dirty and haggard from long fasting and sleeplessness, and more than one of them looked as though death had set his seal upon the pinched little features. Yet, under all this suffering, the adults were cheerful. They were clad in rags, were half starved, had been half drowned in mud and water, were suffering from the fatigue of carrying their children on their shoulders, and yet their faces were radiant with joy. They had plumbably braved the danger of being detected and shot, willingly encountered the horrors of the swamp for the one great boon of freedom. They had gained it, and were happy. It seemed to me that no man who had the least spark of human kindness in his composition, or whatever his prejudices might have been, could have looked upon their patient, fearful and joyful faces without compassion. Group after group we met, wending their way to the army at Lake Providence, until in view, full of five miles I estimated that we had met over two hundred. We asked some of the men if they were willing to fight for the Government, if they were armed, and to do it, if need be, in the cause. To such a question the most of them answered in their quiet, but determined manner which, though but few words are spoken, seems yet the correct is a plain and easily recognized. One answered, "Does you think, masse, dat we would be afraid to fight after dat? to go into dat swamp!" We thought not. We were told of an negro whom the soldiers call "Union Jim," who, on a recent skirmishing expedition, came across three rebels in the swamp. He called to them to surrender. They answered by firing upon him, but fortunately without hitting him. He returned the fire, killing one of them. He then called upon them a second time to surrender, which they considered it discreet to do. They laid down their guns, of which "Jim" took possession, and marched their owners into camp as his prisoners.

The negroes tell us that the rebel inhabitants of Lake Providence and vicinity who have moved back to the other side of "Bayou Macon," have built themselves log houses, and made quite a settlement. On this side of "Bayou Macon," a cypress swamp six miles in width extends for fifty miles up and down the Bayou. Behind this swamp, impassable to any one but to the negroes incited by their desire for freedom, the rebels feel safe, for the present at least. The negroes say, also, that there are five hundred rebel troops there, and three or four times that many negroes. The utmost vigilance on the part of the rebel troops is necessary to keep the negroes from rising in insurrection, or from making away. If two negroes are seen talking to each other, they are immediately entered in separate. If one is detected in a second offence of the kind, he is immediately shot without mercy. They are so strongly guarded on the one in the levee, and are really more afraid of security to the rebel garrison of five hundred than our whole army at Lake Providence. When the idea of arming and organizing them as soldiers was first suggested, I doubted if they possessed sufficient intelligence and pride to make good soldiers, and doubted if they had the moral courage to fight. I have now been with the contrabands of the South, well nearly a year. I have had good opportunities for observation, and have endeavored to form an opinion of the average intelligence of the slave population, unprejudiced by the color of their skins, and I think that no man, whose perception is not obscured by prejudice, could fail to arrive at the conclusion that at least two-thirds of the men slaves would make brave and effective soldiers.

For a week past we have experienced the symptoms of coming Spring. The leaves on the willows in the swamps are nearly as high as a man's head, trees are in full blossom, and the wind blows comfortably soft and warm from the south.

In spite of clinging rains and muddy camp grounds, the health of the army, both here and at Vicksburgh, has vastly improved within the last ten days, and the number entering the hospital has decreased perhaps twenty per cent. within that time. W. L. F.

DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF.

Loss of the Kinsman—Rumored Intention to Evacuate Vicksburgh and Port Hudson—The Home Guards—The Negro Question—Washington's Birthday—Arrival of Union Prisoners—Important New General Order—"Nicaragua Smith."

From Our Special Correspondent.

NEW-ORLEANS, Thursday, Feb. 26, 1863.

Since my last letter, news reached us—on Tuesday evening, the 24th—of the wreck of the United States gunboat Kinsman, Capt. George WILSON, at Brashier City, Berwick's Bay.

It appears that the Kinsman had started from Brashier City on Monday night, the 23d, to go on her usual picket duty at the mouth of the Atchafalaya River. She had on board about 150 people in all—70 of them her own men, and the remainder a portion of the One Hundred and Fourteenth New-York. It was about 12 o'clock at night, and not more than one mile above the city, when the Kinsman ran against a snag, knocking a hole clean through her bottom, by which she commenced filling with extraordinary rapidity.

Finding the serious predicament in which she was placed, Capt. WILSON immediately turned her low down stream, in the hope of being able to reach the most far below the steamboat landing at the city, where the remainder of the fleet were moored, and so as to be able to save his people, stores and ammunition.

In spite of the strong wind which was blowing up stream, and slackening his fires so that the machinery would scarcely work, he did manage to get to the neighborhood of the Estrella, (flag-ship,) Calhoun and Diana, gunboats; all of which cast off boats with admirable celerity to save the people on board.

Before the Kinsman reached the fleet, however, she went down like a plummet in some 10 or 12 fathoms of water, not a particle of her spar or smoke stack being visible above the surface. By the extraordinary exertions of the other gunboats, the lives on board the vessel were saved, with the lamentable exception of six or seven of the crew below, who are reported missing—among them the Chief Engineer. I have not been able to obtain the names yet, but may do so before mailing this letter.

The Kinsman was formerly a freight and passenger boat, called the Gray Cloud, running between Mobile and New-Orleans. She was a singular little craft, but considered one of the most active and serviceable of the Berwick Bay fleet. Capt. WILSON is a gallant commander, and is much chagrined at this painful accident. He said he could endure being sent to the bottom by an enemy's shot, but to be snagged in this ingloious manner was quite intolerable. The Kinsman, it may be remembered, is the same boat which took an active part in the fight at Bayou Teche. She is the vessel under which a torpedo exploded, and it was on board of her that Lieut. WILSON, brother of the Commander, was fatally wounded in the shoulder.

CONTEMPLATED EVACUATION OF PORT HUDSON AND VICKSBURGH.

A party who has just arrived here, on board a schooner from Madisonville, on the other side of Lake Pontchartrain, brings the intelligence that within the rebel lines it is generally understood that the rebels are about to evacuate both Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, owing to the force they entertain of seeing their supplies entirely cut off.

This may be a mere idle rumor, and yet there is very much to give it plausibility; indeed, it is scarcely possible to think how it can be otherwise, if these rebel strongholds are much longer invested. Prices have already reached an fabulous a height among them that cotton is selling at $7 a pound, and as much as $15 is paid for even second-hand shoes.

The whole force, all along, has been receiving an immense amount of supplies through Texas and Northwestern Louisiana, by the Vicksburgh and Texas Railroad and the Red River; also, from Arkansas, down the rivers of that State and the Mississippi. But Gen. SHERMAN's army and the United States gunboats have already broken the communication between these beleaguered places and the western bank of the Mississippi, on which they so much relied. Soon they will be completely isolated, and as the eastern and southern portions of the Confederacy have no food to spare, and little transportation to convey it if they had, Vicksburgh and Port Hudson must soon be in a very hopeless condition.

All the clamoring we hear of reinforcing them is simply idle; for if we take skillful advantage of their association, every man sent to them is really an additional source of weakness. Instead, it would seem that the surest, but perhaps least glorious way of reducing both these fearfully strongholds, is through the belly, without the necessity of spilling one drop of the precious blood of our men. Cutting them off completely by water, while we gradually approach upon them by land, as we did at Yorktown, they would soon find themselves driven to one of three alternatives—to starve, to come out and fight us at a disadvantage, or, better yet, to surrender.

THE HOME GUARDS.

Alluding to this proposed organization, I made some remarks in my last letter which may have a construction put upon them that I did not intend. In deprecating the idea of circulating arms among the inhabitants of New-Orleans, at a period like this, it was not my wish to call in question the loyalty of those who took a prominent part in bringing the matter to the attention of Gen. BANKS, for many of them are represented to me as staunch Unionists.

What I meant to convey was, that in a community constituted as this is, any such military organization would be almost sure to be liable in some black sheep would creep in among the white ones; and that the only safe plan would be, to allow nobody to bear arms but those who are daily enrolled as soldiers of the United States army, subject to the discipline and control of Gen. BANKS. In his hands, and of the meeting in the Lyceum, Monday evening, the 23d, seems to arrive at the same result, though simply upon the broad principle of having no authority to be otherwise. He is willing, if I understand him rightly, to meet the petitioners half way, by guaranteeing that they shall not be required to do duty away from home, but they must be regularly enlisted, and mustered into the volunteer service of the United States.

THE NEGRO QUESTION.

I am sorry to say that the more I look into and hear of this overwhelming negro question, the deeper and deeper it seems to get into inextricable confusion; owing to the amiable desire on the part of our friends to please all parties, who are entertaining the most incongruous ideas. A man may just as well attempt the gymnastic operation of laughing with one side of his face and crying with the other, as to carry out the spirit of the President's Proclamation and yet maintain the claims of slaveowners, as they consider them, in a State like Louisiana, now under purely military rule.

Look at it as it is for a moment. The negroes are free because of our occupation of this place, and yet they are not free, because it has returned representatives. They are to be made to work, and yet the master cannot make them, without the aid of Union bayonets. The negroes are slaves, and yet it is optional whether they go back to their masters or not. The latter want hear of such a thing as free labor. A negro once enrolled in the United States Army is entirely beyond the reach of his former master, and yet if the negro wishes to return to his owner, Gen. BANKS will permit him to do so.

In short, the whole thing is a jumble of contradictions, reminding one very much of poor Goldo's perplexity between the Devil and Conscience—when the former is tempting the clown's legs to run away from his master, Shylock, and Conscience is as persistently urging them to stay.

But, leaving the rights of both planter and negro out of the question, let us glance at this idea of returning colored soldiers to their masters, from a purely military point of view. I confess I cannot understand how such a principle could work, and a civilian may well be puzzled, when I find all military men with whom I have conversed equally unable to give a solution.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Was celebrated here by a grand ball at the Masonic Hall, the music furnished by Eckner's Band, assisted by the brass band of the Forty-seventh Massachusetts Volunteers. The room was most beautifully decorated by festoons of the red, white and blue, and the good old flag was displayed in countless fine devices everywhere. A large number of officers, both of the army and navy, were there, and the delighted girls looked charming by their aides, in spite of the absence of any red-coats in set off their complexions. Toward the end, the band struck up a number of patriotic airs, which added no little to the enjoyment of the evening; and upon the whole, it was one of the finest Union demonstrations ever got up in this city.

On the same evening a celebration of a totally different character, but equally effective, took place at Carrollton, at the encampment of the One Hundred and Sixty-fifth New-York Volunteers, known as the Second Zouaves. The whole encampment was so tastefully decorated with evergreen arches of the semi-tropical plants of the country, and festooned with innumerable lamps, as to have the appearance of a brilliantly-lighted town. They went through their singular drill exercise by torch-light—had a concert of the minstrel order, got up in excellent taste, and, upon the whole, produced an evening's entertainment of rare interest. A great number of officers and civilians, also ladies, were present, and the effect, as the Zouaves were grouped about in their brilliant and strange costume, was extremely picturesque.

RELEASE OF UNION PRISONERS.

The Iberville arrived on Wednesday morning from Baton Rouge, with about 600 Union prisoners, comprising three companies of the Forty-second Massachusetts, the crew of the Harriet Lane, about 270 of the Eighth United States Regulars, (the latter surrendered by that miserable old traitor, TWIGGS, twenty-two months ago,) and about twenty prisoners from the ram Queen of the West, recently taken from us at Gorton's Landing, on Red River.

These men, with many of whom I have conversed, give extremely interesting details of their capture, imprisonment and adventures, and also of the fight at Galveston. In the main, their description corroborates very closely the one I sent you of the latter transaction, and which was gleaned from the rebel pilot PAYNE.

THE NEW-YORK "CAUCASIAN."

There is one thing which the military authorities here have not yet taken in hand, but which cannot be allowed to go on much longer with impunity. I mean the circulation in this Department of that disgusting and demoralizing sheet whose name forms the caption of this paragraph. If Gen. BANKS can prohibit the introduction of torpedoes here to blow up the houses of individuals, I imagine he must have the right to stop the circulation in New-Orleans of such a publication as the New-York Caucasian.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 18.

Gen. BANKS has just issued a new Order—No. 18—which has the ring of the true metal in it. After pronouncing Second Lieut. EDWARD S. BERRY, One Hundred and Fifty-sixth New-York, "dishonorably discharged" from the United States service, for resigning on the pretence of ill-health, inability to perform military duty, and being "opposed to the President's Emancipation Proclamation, he makes the following admirable remarks:

Hereafter, all officers who go out of their way to assign as a reason for desiring to quit the service of their country in the face of the enemy, their disapproval of an act of the Executive for which they are in no manner responsible, will be posted by the Adjutant-General of the army in orders, and brought to trial before a General Court-martial, upon charges preferred under the fifth, ninth and ninty-ninth Articles of War, for using contemptuous or disrespectful words against the President of the United States, for contempt or disrespect toward their commanding officer, and for conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline. The severest punishments awarded by the Code in such cases will be rigidly enforced by the Commanding General.

By command of Major-Gen. BANKS.

This is precisely as it should be, and the only regret is that the General did not begin with somebody carrying more important shoulder-straps than those of a Second Lieutenant. SYDNEY SMITH once said that railway accidents would never cease in England until some Bishop was smashed to pieces. If we had only nerve enough to hang one mutinous Brigadier-General or Special Acting Quartermaster, it would be worth more to the country than dishonorably discharging a whole regiment of Second Lieutenants.

"NICARAGUA SMITH."

In my letter describing the battle of Galveston, I made the remark that the life of the unfortunate Texan known as "Nicaragua SMITH" would not be worth one pinch of snuff, when he got into the hands of the enemy. My prediction is likely to prove too true. A recent number of the Houston (Texas) Telegraph says that he "has been tried as a deserter from the First Texas cavalry, and will suffer a deserter's fate."

What a contrast is here presented between the rebels and our authorities in this dreadful war! While this unhappy man is relentlessly put to death, the treacherous villain who seized him in Galveston Bay and delivered him over to his fate, is brought here, and instead of being kept in close confinement, his life a hostage, is allowed to go at large, to be honored among our enemies, and may be now, for all I know to the contrary, safely on the high seas committing similar atrocities! When, in the name of reason and justice, are we going to apply to these men the sacred rule—"By what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again?"

AFFAIRS AT KEY WEST.

The Proposed Removal of Disaffected Persons—Col. Morgan's Order Countermanded—Enlistments of Colored Men—Business Before the Admiralty Court—The Case of the Steamer Swan, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

KEY WEST, FLA., Saturday, Feb. 28, 1863.

The appearance of Order No. 10, from Col. Jos. T. Morgan, Military Commandant of this Post, of which I sent you a copy, in my last communication, calling upon all persons having certain relationships to held themselves in readiness for transportation to Hilton Head, has been the occasion of a very unusual degree and amount of excitement among our population.

This order of Col. Morgan, emanating from the Headquarters of this Department, and designed to remove disaffected and dangerous persons, was certainly very unfortunately worded, and upon its face bore evidence to unbiased minds that it expressed somewhat more than was designed.

Remonstrances from prominent loyal citizens have been forwarded to Maj.-Gen. Hunter, condemning the execution of this order, and probably urging the recall of Col. Morgan, the officer commanding here, who is very unpopular with the entire Pro-Slavery element in our loyal population, most of whom do not hesitate to pronounce the Emancipation policy unwise, impolitic and unjust, and exercise their secret influence in opposition to it and those who support it. This, however, is not unlooked for, and would probably soon give way under the growing influence of the sentiment that adopted the present policy of the war, after such mature deliberation, were it not that those who have the greatest influence here are nearly all opposed to the whole Emancipation policy. These gentlemen, by their character and influence, give tone to public sentiment here, and, as in most other communities, popular favor proves attractive, and the current is strongly at ebb.

It is understood that thirteen of the line officers of the Ninetieth New-York Volunteers, on garrison duty here, owing to dissatisfaction with this Order No. 10, have tendered their resignations, which, however, not being accepted, and the parties taking time for more calm reflection, have many of them been withdrawn. This move may have an important bearing on their standing as military men, and is now considered to have been hasty and premature. We believe that a better feeling is taking place, and that harmony and unity of action will finally attend the moderate and charitable execution of this very disagreeable order. Several of these officers have been placed under arrest.

Since writing the preceding nine families have been finally notified to leave in the steamer City of Bath, on the morning of Friday, the 27th, and their baggage was mostly on the wharf, ready to go on board, and some of the parties had already gone on board, when the transport steamer Cosmopolitan came to the wharf from Hilton Head, with the Forty-seventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Col. Thomas H. Good, bringing a countermand to the order, and never were sad faces turned more suddenly to joyous ones. Congratulations took place on every side, and hugs were thrown to the breeze in all directions. Above house I counted nineteen national ensigns floating outside. Banners were stretched across the streets, and many little boys, for the first time in a long while, were in the streets, waving the Stars and Stripes.

A very general rejoicing took place. Good feeling prevailed everywhere. And the the opinion is widely entertained that, although the test has been a severe one, yet that a better feeling will come out of it, when the smoke has somewhat cleared away. People have, from absolute and sad experience, realized the distress and pain attendant upon exile, whether merited or not, as a punishment for political offences, and the lesson, rightly applied, will be an encouragement in well doing.

Col. Good takes the command on this island, and it is understood that both regiments will remain here for the present.

The transport steamer Cosmopolitan returned to Hilton Head on the 20th, carrying about 120 colored men who were enlisted on this island and Tortugas as soldiers for the war. This is the first movement of negro troops here, and attracted much attention and remarks, from which it is manifest that many people are very slow to realize the fact that negroes are men, capable of becoming soldiers and of fighting, and have as much at stake in the war as other persons, and that, consequently, the sternest principles of humanity would expose their lives as readily as those of our sons and brothers. These boys that went from here are a fine intelligent set of men, and I have no doubt will make a good record for themselves. Col. MONTGOMERY, of Kansas, returned on the steamer in command of the troops.

The Admiralty Court has disposed of a large amount of business recently, having condemned about thirty vessels and cargoes. The vessels, under some new order, are to be sold on the 7th of March, and the cargoes will mostly be sent to New-York for sale. Such portions as are worth the highest prices here, and such as may be damaged, will be sold here as formerly. The English steamer Adela, so long before the Court, is finally condemned, as is also the steamer Virginia. Several prizes have been brought in during the last few days—among them an English brig, the Magician, cleared at Liverpool for Matamoras, with a full cargo, and captured by the United States ship Conway, 500 miles west of the Cape de Verd Islands. The evidence is considered so strongly favoring her confiscation. The case of the English steamer Pearl has been continued for further opportunity of defence. I am ever willing to correct an error, and will take back all that portion of my remarks in my letter of the 29th of January, published in your issue of the 4th of February, relating to the proceeding of the Admiralty Court, which says: "And, although it is now four weeks since his (the Judge's) return, there is not yet one case of all these that is noticed for sale." This, although literally correct, has no importance in the case, and is certainly no evidence of delay, nor do I think there has been any delays since Judge MARVIN's return. On the contrary, a very large amount of business has been disposed of.

It will be remembered that the ex-mine steamer Swan was totally lost a short time since, on its passage from this port to New-Orleans, sacrificing some twenty lives, and as the conduct of Acting-Master Tyrana, of the blockading schooner Wanderer, has been highly criticised in the public prints, he is entitled to be heard, and here is his statement. That upon boarding the steamer and examining her papers, she was then one hundred and twenty miles out of her course for New-Orleans, without any indorsement on her papers authorizing her to make a coasting trip although she was bonded in $20,000, and after consulting the Engineer and Captain, he advised the latter to proceed direct for his port of destination, as the other blockading vessels constantly, not knowing the parties or circumstances, would be very likely to put a prize crew on board and send her back to Key West. Under this advice, and after a full consultation, and the approval of the Engineer as to the safety of this course, they parted, and the steamer was headed for New-Orleans direct. Twelve hours afterward she was met by a furious storm, and was totally lost, with twenty-two persons arriving themselves in one of the boats, after very great hardship and exposure for fourteen days. Capt. TYRANA is very much and deeply affected at the very unfortunate and painful results, and, I believe, he cannot be by his commanding officer.

The steam transport City of Bath arrived here on the 26th from Hilton Head, with military dispatches for the commanding officer, which is a General order from the head of this Department requiring all such transient persons within the military lines of this Department and of this command to produce before the Provost Marshal sufficient proofs of loyalty, and, renewing their oths of allegiance, to obtain from the Secretary of War a license to do business or trade, or remain within these lines. This order is considered very stringent, and, administered wisely and justly, will at once have an influence to encourage and aid all those who are in any wise disposed to yield their friendly influence in favor of the great cause for which our Government is struggling. Those who will not do this, and still refuse their allegiance, will have small claims for protection, and cannot complain of being placed among the people whose cause they are so strongly attached to. A STRIKING INVENTION.

The Pneumatic Dispatch Company—Practical Working of the Invention.

From the London Times.

The efforts of our engineers to make air do duty as steam, to enforce the law by which air rushes in with great force wherever a partial vacuum is created, has at last in this country resulted in a very practical scheme by which parcels are transmitted by a kind of atmospheric railway after the same fashion as that by which the late Mr. BARNES tried to propel cars on his atmospheric railway. There is, however, this important difference between the two plans, that whereas Mr. BARNES's locked very well in theory, it was found all but impossible in practice, while with the Pneumatic Dispatch Company the working, as far as it has yet gone, is found in its cheapness and its expedition to surpass the expectations which were formed of it. At present only a length of about one-third of a mile has been laid from the arrival platform of the Euston Station to the Northwestern District Post-office, in Eversholt-street. This length, though quite sufficient to give a fair sample of the speed and power of this subterranean parcels line, is, of course, only the first step towards a regular series of those "dispatches," which are hereafter to be laid up so as to connect together all the great railway stations and chief district post-offices. Before entering further on the subject of these future extensions we must explain what the pneumatic dispatch means, and how it is carried into practice. The "tube," as at present laid, is very like an elliptical gas main, 32 inches high by 20 wide, and laid at an average depth of about nine feet below the road. The pipes of which it is composed are made in nine feet lengths, with socket joints filled in with lead so as to keep them perfectly air-tight, and on the inside, at the bottom of the tube, are cast iron rails, like miniature railway metals, two feet apart. The car to run on these is made of wrought iron, weighs nearly 8 cwt., is about eight feet long, and runs upon four wheels, 28 inches in diameter. In this short enumeration we have described almost the whole of the plant and rolling stock required for a pneumatic dispatch railway. The cars we have spoken of, when placed in the tube on the rails, is blown from, and to and, backward or forward, as it is wished. The way in which this is accomplished is as simple as it is ingenious. Air, like all other substances in nature, has a weight of its own, which, though very light—only 1¼ ounces to the cubic foot—is, nevertheless, enough to bring it under the influence of the laws of centrifugal force, which gives it a tendency to fly off with more or less pressure, according to the velocity with which it is whirled round from a centre. This inevitable law is turned to good account by working the pneumatic tube. At each end of the tube we have described a hollow iron wheel is erected, working in an air-tight box. This wheel is 8½ feet in diameter, with a thickness of about two feet at the nave or centre—a thickness which gradually diminishes toward its outer circumference, so as to give it the same cubical contents at the rim as at the middle. This wheel is connected with a steam-engine of about 40-horse power, which turns it at a velocity of from 70 to 80 miles an hour, when the air which is drawn in through its hollow centre is thrown off from its periphery with a force which gives a pressure of from five to seven ounces on the square inch, very nearly the pressure of a hurricane, and all of which, by opening a valve at the end of the tube, is driven through it with almost irresistible velocity. The cars we have already spoken of, when on the rails in the tube, fit it almost completely, and expose a surface of nearly five square feet to the blast. They are therefore driven along it at the rate of nearly 30 miles an hour. In literal fact, the cars are either drawn or driven along by what is virtually a chain of air, which costs nothing, and of which the weight and friction are almost nil. Nothing, in fact, can well be simpler, cheaper or more effective than the whole apparatus, and the ease and certainty with which the wheel does its duty and sends one or more cars, heavily laden, flying before it is astonishing. At present, as we have said, the tube is only laid for a short length, but already by this means the mail bags for the Northwestern District are dispatched on the instant of their arrival at Euston-square, and though for this small distance the saving of time effected amounts to only a few minutes, yet such a saving promises to become important in proportion as the line is extended. It is intended to lay down forthwith a line of 48-inch tubes to form pneumatic stations in connection with the Camdentown station of the London and Northwestern Railway; a central site in High-Holborn, the Smithfield New-Market; in Gresham-street, in connection with the large carrying firms for goods and parcels; the General Post-office, Covent-Garden Market, and the new terminus of the Southeastern Railway at Charing-cross. This entire line, with its branches, will be about five miles in length. Its cost, laid complete, including stations, machinery, compensations and purchase of sites, is estimated at £131,000, and the whole, it is said, may be completed and brought into practical use within a year from the commencement of the works. On this outlay the Directors calculate upon giving a net dividend of not less than 10 per cent. per annum, but on this point we can say nothing. It is clear that Messrs. PEARSON alone convey 400 tons of parcels a day through London, at a cost of 9d. per ton per mile, whereas the Pneumatic Company could afford to do this same work quicker at a penny a ton a mile, and yet be large gainers by the transaction. But paying or not paying, the public are sure to gain from the labors of the new company, by getting their parcels transmitted throughout London in a tenth of the time, and for a tenth of the cost now expended in sending them from one district to another. Between the pneumatic dispatch and the subterranean railway the days sought to be fast approaching when the ponderous goods vans which now ply between station and station shall disappear for ever from the streets of London. If only this result is brought about, the promoters of the two schemes may be considered in the light of public benefactors, and from this point of view alone we are inclined to wish success to the exertions of the Pneumatic Dispatch Company. The engineers of the undertaking are Mr. RAMMEL and Mr. LAURENS CLARK.

France and the Cotton Question.

IMPORTANT DISPATCH OF M. DROUYN DE LHUYS, THE FRENCH FOREIGN SECRETARY, TO M. MERCIER.

The following dispatch, which was omitted from the French "Yellow Book," is given to the public through the columns of the Courrier des États Unis:

M. DROUYN DE LHUYS TO M. MERCIER.

PARIS, Nov. 13, 1862.

SIR: I have noted with especial interest the new advices you have addressed me in regard to the measures by which the Federal authorities hope to facilitate the exportation of cotton by way of New-Orleans. Mr. SEWARD was pleased to state, in the letter which he wrote you on the 11th of September, that the dispatch of cotton through that city, and its shipment for Europe, were thenceforth free from all restriction, and that his department of commerce would meet with no other obstructions than those opposed by the Confederates. Moreover, on the 6th of October following, he communicated to you the text of instructions recently addressed to the agents of the Treasury, with a view of preventing that, in endeavoring to aid in the execution of the law of confiscation they should encroach over the bounds of legitimate origin and of transactions which had occurred previously, a conflict which would be calculated to defeat the negotiations of purchasers.

Without denying that nothing could be more favorable than the disposition manifested by Mr. SEWARD, it is no less true, sir, that Europe experiences very nearly the same difficulty as heretofore in obtaining supplies of cotton from the United States. In fact, the Federal Government permits revival of the restrictions which have directly or indirectly interfered with the exportation of this material still to exist. For example, the exclusion of cotton from the interior, in consequence, continues to be checked as well by the absolute exclusion from New-Orleans of several kinds of commodities, such as brandies, as by the power which the Custom-house authorities, and in foreign countries the American Consuls, exercise of obstructing the exportation to that port of a certain number of other articles, among which wines may be named. On the 4th of July last, the Secretary of the Treasury, in a letter addressed particularly to Mr. SEWARD, the prejudice thus caused our trade in the products of the vineyard. I beg you to review these instances of the same kind connected with the question that of supplying the Cotton industry.

Again, while scrutinizing past the instructions which have not been over to the agents of the Treasury, tend to limit, by a liberal interpretation, the effects of the law of confiscation, I still persist, Sir, in considering as a very serious obstacle to the exportation of cotton the maintenance of Article 2, of the order of Aug. 28 last, which forbids the entrance of money into the Confederate States, as well as all payments, whether in gold or in silver, by merchandise bought in Slave States, and which seized the moment of the goods, whether they have been directly or indirectly paid for in coin.

The Secretary of the Treasury observes, it is true, that cotton bought of the Confederates may be paid for either in Federal paper or in bills upon Federal banks, in whose hands the buyers have deposited the funds to liquidate their purchases; but it seems to me quite unlikely that the secret brokers of the cotton will consent to accept this mode of payment. Mr. CHASE, on the other hand, points out the necessity of not fulfilling the Confederates by supplies of money with new resources for continuing a war, of which Europe as well as America suffers the disastrous effects; but is the interdiction of these supplies an effective means of abridging the duration of the contest? Nothing that has thus far occurred justifies the idea.

I have also remarked with pleasure, in the letter of Mr. CHASE to Mr. SEWARD, a passage which indicates the firmest intention of permitting the payment for cotton to be made in money, if the regulations which now forbid it continue to be subject of remonstrances on the part of the European Powers. I beg you, Sir, to use, in your conversations with Mr. SEWARD, your best efforts to induce him to realize promptly this intention. A sentiment of reserve, easy to understand, forbids us to demand peremptorily the withdrawal of a measure of internal expediency; but as soon as you demonstrate its inconvenience and practical uselessness, we may hope to see our wishes taken into serious consideration. I will be obliged to you, in any event, if you will keep me advised of any new steps you may take toward obtaining this end. (Signed) DROUYN DE LHUYS.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Our Police.

The Police Commissioners, with their more immediate subordinates, are comfortably and conveniently located in their new building, of which mention was made in a few general words since. The amount of routine business necessitated by the growing importance of the Police Department, has increased vastly during the past three years, and as the population of the city rolls on toward the million, the exigencies of office duty will demand accommodations largely advanced in space and modern conveniences beyond the narrow and greatly prescribed limits of the old headquarters. The working status of the Metropolitan force was never more elevated than now, nor at any time within police recollections has a system of such absolute efficiency been in operation at the present. The Commissioners, by a habit of judicial impartiality, have impressed upon the force, from the Superintendent to the patrolman, the absolute policy of good behavior, and unflagging interest in the performance of duty. Regular sessions are held by the Commissioners, at which all members of the force charged with dereliction of duty are arraigned and afforded a fair opportunity of explaining their action, and as yet we have to learn of dissatisfaction on the part of citizen or officer with the decision of the Court. Since the retirement of Gen. BOWEN, the President of the Board has assumed upon Commissioner ACTON, who, with Commissioner BRADY, constitute the Board. Superintendent KENNEDY has his office in the same building, and remains, despite the charges against him, all of which have been exploded to receive trust, at the head of the force. Ex-Chief John S. FOLK, is in charge in Brooklyn, subordinate, of course, to the Metropolitan Headquarters. The force in Brooklyn is ridiculously small, and wholly inadequate to the proper performance of the required work. It is not right to leave a city of over 200,000 inhabitants to the custody of between 200 and 300 men. With the exception of occasional officiousness on the part of bilious or newly appointed officers, and a tendency to strain at gnats, while mosquitoes of omnibus cure permitted unimpeded progress, the people of the City and of Brooklyn have slight cause of complaint against the force as now organized, while the Commissioners and their immediate subordinates may with propriety and justice claim for themselves the thanks of a well protected people.

Our Harbor Defenses.

This afternoon, at 6 o'clock, the Civic Committee on Harbor Defences will hold a public session at the City Hall. The Chamber of the Board of Aldermen will be used by them, and distinguished speakers are expected to give their views as to the necessities for defense, and the best way of spending the present $1,000,000 appropriation. Amongst those invited are Major-Gen. ANDERSON, Admiral PARAGUT, Chief Engineer CRAVEN, Capt. HOWGATE, Mr. WILLIAM H. WEBB, and Col. RICHARD DOBBINS.

house use have nearly disappeared from the market, and the Customs are now paid mostly in Gold. The Import entries of last week being on a liberal scale, the Customs were $1,380,000. The Export clearances of Domestic Produce continued large to the date of our last week's return, but some days of interruption will now occur, until prices on the Corn Exchange adapt themselves to the reduced rates on Foreign Bills. The business of the week on the Stock Exchange, on the Share and Bond lists, was on a comparatively moderate scale, until near the close, when the market was more active, with a large business in some of the Railways and in Pacific Mail. Of the last about 7,000 shares were taken at the 4 o'clock Public Board and after its adjournment, the price advancing to 170, and at a late hour to 171, cash, and 172, buyer 30 days.

The price of Gold Coin closed on Saturday afternoon at 154¾ ₩ cent. The fluctuations of the day were between 155¼ and 154¼ ₩ cent. A large number of settlements have been closed out within the past three days, and the volume of dealings is already much reduced from the extreme excitement of last week, and the early part of the present week. At the Regular Stock Exchange the difference is more than one-half, and it will, no doubt, be further reduced when the Stamp Duty of Congress goes into full force, under instructions from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

As the extreme Gold excitement abates on the Stock Exchange, the speculative interest in the Share list partially improves. At the close of the general market presented quite a firm appearance, with large sales of Pacific Mail, Harlems, &c., at advancing prices. The 6 ₩ cents of Missouri and Tennessee, on the other hand, have gone down. Government Stocks and Treasury paper are steady. The following prices were made at the 4 o'clock Public Board:

We republish from our paper of Friday the official wording of the stamp duty on time contracts and loans on Gold, beyond three days. The act, we understand, goes into immediate effect. The stamp duty is ½ ₩ cent, and interest at the rate of 6 ₩ cent, while the contract or loan is running, and no contract, loan or advance upon Gold is valid if not reduced to the par value of the Gold. The stamp duty does not affect contracts or loans made before the passage of the act for a definite and expressed period, but all such contracts, loans or advances, due or payable on demand, are, by the wording of the act, held to be now due, and if extended beyond three days must be reduced to the par value of the Gold, the time of extension specified, and a stamp duty equal to ½ ₩ cent, and 6 ₩ cent ₩ annum interest for such time, paid to the Government, over and above the rate of interest agreed to be paid to the lender, if on loan, or to the seller of the Gold, if on contract. The same rule is applicable to advances made by Brokers to their customers or correspondents.

Gold.—All contracts for the purchase or sale of gold and silver coin or bullion, secured by pledge or deposit, or other disposition of gold or silver coin of the United States, if to be performed after a period exceeding three days, shall be in writing or printed, and signed by the parties or their agents to authorize, and shall have one or more actually genuine as provided in the act to which this is an amendment, specifying the price per ounce fine or million of fineness, pledged or deposited, and if any such contract, pledge or deposit, made for a period not exceeding three days, shall be renewed or in any way extended for any time whatever, said loan, pledge or deposit shall be subject to the duty imposed on loans exceeding three days, and no loan of currency on money on the security of gold or silver coin of the United States as aforesaid shall be made exceeding in amount the par value of the coin pledged or deposited as security; and any loan so made, or attempted to be made, shall be utterly void.

Gold.—All contracts, loans or sales of bullion or gold and silver coin of the United States, not made in accordance with this act, shall be wholly and absolutely void; and in addition to the penalties provided in the act to which this is an amendment, any party to said contract may, at any time within one year from the date of the contract, bring suit before any Court of competent jurisdiction to recover back, for his own use and benefit, the money paid on any contract not made in accordance with this act.

Mr. Alexander Taylor, of the house of Taylor Brothers, Money Brokers, and Mr. H. F. Arnold, of the Stock firm of Satterlee & Co., have been admitted to membership at the regular Stock Exchange Board.

Subscriptions have been opened with Messrs. E. D. Morgan & Co., and Clark, Dodge & Co., to the increased State capital of the Iron Mountain Company, of Missouri, engaged extensively and profitably in mining and manufacturing iron. The advertisement has already appeared in the Times, and additional information can be had of Messrs. Morgan, or Messrs. Clark, Dodge & Co.

In reply to an Iowa correspondent, C. S. W., we have to repeat, that the Interest on all the Funded Stocks of the United States is payable in Gold, and the principal also, when redeemed, which time is at the pleasure of the Government after certain dates specified in the body of the Stock. The practice of the Government has been either to buy up the Stocks before these dates roll round, or else to pay them off at the earliest time thereafter in Gold and Silver. The interest on all temporary loans on Treasury Notes, Certificates of Deposit and Certificates of Indebtedness, including the 7.30 ₩ cents, has been uniformly paid in Gold, and will continue to be so paid on all issues dated prior to the close of February, 1863, or to the date of the approval of the Loan act, just passed, which provides that future temporary paper issued by the Treasury shall carry interest only in Currency. The same correspondent asks:

"Why is there a constant difference of 12 to 15 ₩ cent. in the market prices of Gold and Sterling Exchange; in other words, what is the par of Foreign Exchange, and how is it established?"

The par of Exchange on London is called 109.23 ₩ cent. That is, an English Sovereign, of fresh coinage, and nominally valued at 4 dollars 44 cents and 4 mills, is intrinsically equal in weight, by our gold standard, to 4 dollars 85 cents and 4 mills, though the value of all English coined Sovereigns, or £ sterling, new and old, is fixed by act of Congress to be received at the Custom-house as $4 85 each only. The rule of difference between the price of Gold and rate of Exchange in our present currency of legal tender is, for example, as follows:

As 109 : : 100.23 : : 155.

The quotient would be $169.30 per Exchange as determined by 155 ₩ cent. for Gold; to which the Banker adds, when drawing against the shipment of Gold, the charges of freight and insurance, and his own commission or profit.

NEW-JERSEY CENTRAL COMPANY, JAN. 1, 1863.

Capital Stock		$3,500,000
First Mortgage	$1,400,000
Second Mortgage	600,000	2,000,000
Total		$5,500,000
Gross traffic of 1862		1,307,888
Expenses 44 ₩ cent		575,888
Net Income		$732,000
Interest	$142,512
Dividends 10 ₩ cent	365,000
State and Federal Taxes	20,000	528,998
Added to Surplus or Renewal Fund		$203,042

The increase of net income over the year 1861 is $94,898. Ample expenditures were made during the year in renewal of bridges, roadway, &c., and in the purchase of new equipment, leaving still to the credit of the Surplus or Renewal Fund a balance of $233,116. The property appears to be admirably managed, and profitably so for the shareholders, as the cash dividends of 10 ₩ cent ₩ annum, (paid quarterly,) without impairing the efficiency of the Road and Equipment, abundantly demonstrate. The President is Mr. John Taylor Johnston, of this City. The traffic from the Coal Tonnage—Lehigh and Delaware and Lackawanna—amounted, in 1862, to $661,280, against $568,275 in 1861.

It affords us much pleasure to hear that Mr. Thomas W. Olcott, the veteran President of the Mechanics and Farmers' Bank of Albany, has been nominated for Comptroller of the National Currency, under the recent General Banking act of Congress. It will afford still greater satisfaction to the country if Mr. Olcott should find it consistent with his personal convenience to accept this important appointment.

A tribute to the United States Trust Company, in explanation of our reference on Saturday, to say, on the authority of Mr. Joseph Lawrence, the President, that they have at no time loaned over its par value on Gold Coin, and have of late, on the excitement in the market, declined such loans altogether.

The President of the Delaware and Hudson Company writes us a note—out in the usually amiable temper of Mr. Olyphant—to say that his loans on Gold Coin have been inconsiderable, and at no time over 110 ₩ cent. We had not heard before that this Company had loaned Money at all in this way. Our allusion was more particularly to the Pennsylvania Coal Company.

ATLANTIC SAVINGS BANK,
New-York, Saturday, March 7, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In reply to the remarks in your Money article in this day's paper, intimating that some of the Savings Banks of this City and Brooklyn have favored the speculation in Gold by loaning the means of their depositors to encourage and facilitate this trade, we most unequivocally state, so far as this institution is concerned, that it has never loaned as much as a single dollar of the funds of its depositors on coin; neither [illegible]

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We have advices from Port Royal to the 3d inst., by the arrival at this port of the steamer Fah Kee. She brings the report that just before she left heavy firing was heard in the direction of Savannah, supposed to have been an attack of the National forces upon Fort McAllister. The report of the destruction of the rebel steamer Nashville had reached Port Royal.

The Richmond papers of the 5th inst. contain telegrams from Savannah, announcing another attack on Fort McAllister on the 3d. Three ironclads and two mortars opened on the fort, and succeeded in dismounting an eight-inch Columbiad and wounding two men—according to the rebel report. The attack was continued nearly all night, but was not renewed next day. The fort is said to be uninjured.

The rebels furnish us contradictory reports regarding the gunboat Indianola. The Richmond Dispatch, of the 6th inst., states that she was blown up on Tuesday night last by the rebels, but a telegram in the same paper says she was not destroyed, but that the rebels were engaged in raising her. The Jackson Mississippian, however, states positively that she was destroyed, and that her armament has fallen into the hands the National forces. According to the Mississippian's report, the rebels were frightened by a flatboat, fixed up to resemble a "turreted monster," and sent down past the Vicksburgh batteries.

We learn by dispatches from Vicksburgh, in the Richmond papers of the 6th, that our gunboats have passed through the canal from the Mississippi to Lake Providence, and are "working great destruction."

Gold is up to three hundred in Richmond. So says the Dispatch of the 5th. Various causes are assigned for the sudden advance of fifty per cent. The Dispatch thinks it is chiefly owing to the demand from blockade runners, and from foreigners leaving the Confederacy. Silver has kept pace with gold, and even bank notes are now selling in the rebel capital at fifty per cent. premium.

A recent report of the rebel Secretary of War contains some curious and instructive admissions regarding the stringency of the blockade, and the difficulty of obtaining supplies for the rebel army. He apprehends no difficulty in obtaining a sufficiency of arms and ammunition, but the question of subsistence is rather an alarming one. The harvests of the past season, he says, have not generally proved propitious, and notwithstanding the much larger breadth of land devoted to the culture of cereals and forage, the product in many extensive districts is below the average.

By the steamer Columbia, which arrived at this port early on Saturday morning, we have advices from New-Orleans to the 27th ult. There had been no military movement of importance. Gen. WEITZEL had a strong force in the Lafourche country, watching the enemy's movements. It was rumored that Gen. GROVER, in command at Baton Rouge, had refused to recognize the negro regiments which had been sent there, and that Gen. BANKS had in consequence issued a special order commanding their recognition. Business in New-Orleans was dull. A number of released National prisoners had arrived there, including our men captured at Galveston, a party of regulars surrendered by the traitor TWEEDS twenty-two months ago, and those captured on board the Queen of the West.

The rebels have a report from Port Hudson that Gen. BANKS' forces, or a portion of them, are moving toward that point from Baton Rouge. A dispatch, dated the 25th ult., announces that a force of 4,000 men were marching toward Logansiu—the advance guard being at Amite River, only twelve miles from Port Hudson. A subsequent dispatch, dated the 27th, announces that the "Yankees" had been driven from Point Coupée. The Richmond papers of the 6th, however, say that an attack upon Port Hudson is daily expected.

The United States Senate on Saturday did nothing of importance in open session.

We learn from Washington that Gen. BURNSIDE has been positively assigned to a command, and will leave in a few days for the scene of his duties.

A journal in Georgia, called the Southern Union, has proposed to reconstruct the old Union of the States. The Atlanta Confederacy [illegible] into it, and in the course of its article asserts that "there are fewer Abolitionists in Massachusetts than Reconstructionists in Georgia," which is a very hopeful sign.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, on Saturday, the bill for the enlargement of the locks of the Champlain Canal, was reported favorably; also, a bill to change the location of the Baldwinsville Canal and to enlarge the locks; also, the bill to facilitate the construction of the Lake Ontario, Auburn and New-York Railroad. A bill to authorize the use of dummy-engines on the Brooklyn Central Railroad was introduced. The New-York Warehousing bill was ordered to a third reading. The Senate agreed to hold a session on Tuesday evening for the consideration of general orders.

In the Assembly, Messrs. KOEB, REDINGTON and MATHAN were appointed a Special Committee to inquire into the alleged illegal imprisonment of citizens of New-York in Fort McHenry. A bill to amend the General Bounty law, so as to make it apply to cities, was reported favorably, and it was moved forward to a second Committee of the Whole. Notice was given of a bill to authorize a railroad in Pearl, Madison and other streets in New-York. The Annual Appropriation bill was passed. The Special Committee on Harbor Defences was dissolved, and the Standing Committee on the Militia and Public Defence was instructed to inquire into the condition of the defences of the harbor of New-York, and report before the close of the session what action is necessary on the part of the State for the defence of the City. The Assembly adjourned until 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

GENERAL NEWS.

It will be seen that Maj.-Gen. WOOL, commanding the Department of the East, is making a tour of the various States under his jurisdiction. On Friday last he was at the capital of Rhode Island. He was received by Joint Committees of the General Assembly, welcomed by the Governor, and made a speech before the Legislature. He said he had come only to inspect the coast defences, and he very speedily set about his work. He took every occasion to address those he met, and sketches of his various addresses are given by our correspondent. The veteran General appeared as hale and vigorous as the young officers who accompanied him.

Hon. C. L. VALLANDIGHAM addressed a full house at the Broadway Headquarters of the Democracy on Saturday evening. He opposed the war, advocated immediate peace, denounced our Conscription act as ten times worse than that of Poland, and counseled resistance to it by the people of the North.

We have advices from Mexico to the 17th ult. by way of Havana, brought to this port by the Columbia. Gen. FOREY, commander of the French forces, had issued a proclamation dated the 15th, announcing that the French Army was about to march on the Capital. The forward movement was expected to commence on the 21st or 22d. There had been no fighting since the last previous advices. It was believed that the French were about to occupy the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, from the fact that a detachment of troops had been sent to the mouth of the Coatzacalcos, with a gunboat to blockade Minatitlan.

Advices from Havana by the Columbia are to the 2d inst. The weather there was very warm, and business was dull. There had been but one arrival from a rebel port—the schooner William Baily, from Tampa Bay, with cotton. The rebel steamers Alice and Antonica were undergoing repairs. Nothing had been heard of the Alabama or Florida. News had been received at Havana from Venezuela that the "Federals" had got possession of Carracas, and that Maracaibo was still blockaded.

Dates from Kingston, Jamaica, to Feb. 7, have been received. The only news of interest is of the dissolution of the Colonial Assembly, which took place on the 31st January, in consequence of a vote unfriendly to the Colonial Government. Weather and the general health are reported good. Subscriptions to the Lancashire Relief Fund continue to pour in.

The Board of Councilmen met at 2 o'clock, P. M. Saturday, and considered the Annual Appropriation bill for 1863, which was the special order. The figures presented by the Finance Committee were exactly those adopted by the other Board, but they were made to undergo wonderful mutations. About all the increases and new items voted by the Aldermen were rescinded. A new item of $80,000 was inserted to pay for the use of the Morse telegraph apparatus during the past six years, and to establish a system of telegraphing that will connect all the fire-engine houses, public buildings, &c., as recommended by the Mayor in a message to the Board at the previous meeting. The item of $12,500 in the Comptroller's budget, for constructing two new parks over the Harlem Railroad tunnel on Fourth-avenue, and which was stricken out by the Aldermen, was reinserted. An effort to reinsert $20,000 for the Commission laying out the City above One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, was unsuccessful. In a very few instances items were reduced below the Comptroller's estimates. Conference Committees probably will be appointed to adjust the differences of the two Boards, which amount to over $1,000,000. The Board adopted a report of the Ferry Committee to advertise and sell the ferry franchises from East Houston, Christopher, and Eighty-eighth streets, respectively to Williamsburgh, Hoboken and Astoria, for a period of ten years from the 1st of May next. Adjourned to 4 P. M. on Monday.

In the case of RICHARD D. ADDINGTON, tried in the Court of Over and Terminer for assault with intent to kill, the jury, after being out all night, returned into Court on Saturday morning, with a verdict of "assault and battery." The prisoner was remanded for sentence to-day. The case of RICHARD MCCORMICK, indicted for murder, is set down for to-day, in this Court.

The Share market on Saturday was firm, and, on several descriptions, active at the close. The price of Gold, 1543 ⅌ cent. Exchange, 170@171. Money easy.

Limited sales of Flour were reported on Saturday at a further reduction of 10c.@15c. ⅌ bbl. A very moderate business was transacted in Grain; Wheat and Oats were lower; Corn was heavy. The movements in Provisions, Groceries, Tallow and Cotton were restricted, though buyers had any existing advantage. Whisky was in fair demand at steady figures. Hides, Skins and Leather were less active. Hay, Hops, Seeds, Hemp and Wool were in less request. The freight engagements were limited at easier rates. There were 300 vessels of all classes in port.

On a Tour.

"DEAR BROOKS, of New-York, is on a pious pilgrimage to Wisconsin and other parts of the West, seeking to teach Copperheads discretion. He has met and a council with some Democratic magnates in Indianapolis."

DEAR's visit is timely and rather necessary for the welfare of the Democracy. The Copperhead element is getting the ascendancy too much for the safety of the party. It takes very little sagacity to perceive that the party in the North which commits itself to sympathy with the rebellion is doomed to hopeless perdition. Even if the rebellion were to triumph and Southern independence should be achieved, the political fate of those at the North who should have aided it would be forever sealed.

But the great mass of the Democratic party have no thought of allowing themselves to be committed to any such thing. They may denounce the Administration and censure its acts, but they are wise enough and patriotic enough to stop a good way short of the treason of the Copperhead faction. The recent movements in this State, the speeches of JOHN VAN BUREN, JAMES T. BRADY, Judge DALY and others, and the significant indications from the Democrats of the interior, show conclusively that they have made up their minds not to put themselves under the leadership of VALLANDIGHAM, BROOKS, WOOD & Co. While we doubtless, indeed we are greatly mistaken, the Democrats will be the loudest war party in the country.

The French in Mexico.

We have an arrival of Mexican news, via Havana. The advices are meagre, but interesting. The source from which they come is wholly French, as they were taken to Havana by a French dispatch boat, which left Vera Cruz on the 17th ult. From the cities of Mexico and Puebla there appears to be nothing later.

But, according to their own accounts, the French forces have really made no progress, and, though Gen. FOREY proclaims, Feb. 15, that he is about to march his army to the City of Mexico, it is stated that, notwithstanding this and all other demonstrations of an advance movement, there is little probability that any attempt of the kind will take place at present.

It appears that Gen. FOREY has long been expecting a reinforcement of from 4,000 to 10,000 men from France, via Martinique; and he does not consider it safe to move until these reinforcements arrive at Vera Cruz, and are on the march to sustain him in the interior.

No news of the arrival of the expected reinforcements at Martinique even, had reached Vera Cruz on the 17th ult. All the indications are that the French army is not only at a stand, but that its condition is quite uncomfortable. We may safely come to this conclusion, if the French can give no better account of themselves than such as comes by this arrival.

Gen. FOREY has issued a proclamation to the Mexican people. It is a curiosity in its way, though the attempt to clothe rascality in the garb of virtue, as is customary in such diplomatic proclamations, is as manifest as the noonday sun. Gen. FOREY begs the Mexican people to allow him to go to the City of Mexico, overthrow the existing Government, exact redress for alleged grievances—of which the repudiation of the swindling Jecker claim is the principal—establish another Government, and "then," says the immaculate FOREY, speaking for the French Emperor—"then, those of us who have contributed with their lives to the accomplishment of so noble an enterprise, will remember in the ships of France, and return to our country."

Surely, every development of the French invasion of Mexico tends to expose more and more its foolishness and its wickedness. The moral sentiment of this country, with the exception of the Copperhead faction, is becoming keenly alive to its unjust character as regards Mexico, and its unfriendly purposes as regards our political and commercial interests. But the French enterprise in Mexico is dragging its slow length along, and if it runs into May without accomplishing anything decisive, we need not trouble ourselves about that or any other of NAPOLEON's schemes.

We notice that SALIGNY has been reinstated as resident French Minister in Mexico. This indicates the renascendancy of the Jecker and Almonte party, the animus and policy of which Gen. FOREY's last proclamation to the Mexican people fully exposes.

It is also stated that a French force has left Vera Cruz for Minatitlan, with the intention, in all probability, of occupying that place and the isthmus of Tehuantepec. This is one of the favorite schemes of the Jecker-Almonte-Saligny party. It is done under the pretence that parties in the United States are supplying the Mexicans with arms by that route. We see the bare suspicion of such a departure from the neutrality laws on the part of the United States has seriously ruffled the temper of the French Government, which has recently manifested such tender regard for the rights of nations, especially those of weak nations.

A MISREPRESENTATION—UNCONDITIONAL LOYALTY.—The Boston Post, noticing our statement of the objects of the meeting held at Cooper Institute on Friday night, says:

"These are right objects, and if faithfully adhered to by the meeting, its proceedings will afford no resistance to such journals as the TIMES, whose loyalty is conditioned upon the emancipation of the negroes."

We are at a loss to understand what possible excuse the Post can have for so flagrant a misstatement of the position of the TIMES. It is flatly contradicted by everything we have ever said or written on the subject. From the beginning to the present time we have insisted upon the supreme duty of unconditional loyalty to the Union, and have not hesitated to denounce, as unfaithful citizens, all, of whatever party, who insist upon either the extinction, or the preservation of Slavery as a condition of their support of the Union, and of the war which alone can save it. We have held the same language concerning every other question of subordinate importance which uneasy and discontented politicians seek to thrust into the foreground. Some will not support the war if the writ of habeas corpus is suspended; others will not do so unless Gen. FREMONT or Gen. MCCLELLAN is put in command of the army; and still others refuse their active aid in crushing the rebellion because they do not approve the President's action on other subjects. We have never failed to brand all such conditional patriots as enemies of the cause they profess to serve.

Our support of the President's Proclamation of Emancipation has always been based upon its military character,—upon the fact that it was a means to an end, an instrument to be used for the preservation of the Union. We have never sustained it on any other ground; and if we saw reason to believe that its withdrawal would restore the Union, and bring the whole country and people back to their allegiance to the Constitution, we should advocate that withdrawal. We beg the Post distinctly to understand that our loyalty is not "conditioned on the emancipation of the negroes."

Revival of the National Canal Enlargements.

The intelligent and well-directed action of the New-York Chamber of Commerce, at their meeting on Thursday last, in respect to the inter-oceed facilities, so much needed, for the vastly increased commerce of the Northwestern States, can hardly fail to exert a reviving and a cheering influence, not only on our City and State, but especially on the Great Interior, now so deeply and justly aggrieved by the recent temporary defeat in the House of Representatives of the efficient measures of relief proposed by the States of New-York and Illinois. The unanimous movement in the Chamber of Commerce also was very distinctly that the friends of those measures, in that body, at least, do not at all regard their temporary rejection by the slender majority in the House, so strangely composed, in part, of six of the thirty-three members from the State of New-York, as being final and irrevocable. On the contrary, they plainly announce that the project is to be renewed and prosecuted with undiminished zeal and vigor, and its great national merits presented to the next Congress, with such additional evidence of its national necessity, together with such an overwhelming manifestation of public opinion throughout the country, as to render further resistance, and especially further misrepresentation, next to impossible.

The fact is perfectly notorious, that the small majority eventually formed to defeat the bill, was secured mainly by the gross and willful misrepresentations of the cost of the proposed works, and by assertions, equally unwarrantable and unscrupulous, of their want of capacity, and in particular in respect to the want of water on the Erie Canal!

To effectually disabuse the public mind, and to secure a sound and intelligent public opinion on the whole subject—the very remarkable proceeding has just been instituted, of a call of a National Convention, signed by ninety-eight members of the last Congress, inviting all the friends of the measure, and especially all the Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Agricultural Societies and Business Associations throughout the country, to meet at Chicago on the first Tuesday in June next—for which assemblage every facility will undoubtedly be afforded by cheap excursion tickets and otherwise.

Within three days after the call, it was unanimously accepted by the Chamber of Commerce of this City, which promptly appointed of a committee of twenty-five of its members to attend the convention in its behalf. The invitation will doubtless meet a similar response from most if not all of the cities of this State, and probably of New-England, not to mention the movement, in mass, of the great West itself.

A second resolution was also adopted by our Chamber of Commerce, on the motion of Mr. B. B. ROGERS, to earnestly and immediately remonstrate against any action of our State Legislature for rebuilding or adding any new locks on the Erie or the Oswego Canals—and he might have added of the Champlain Canal,—of the scanty dimensions of those now existing, which admit the passage only of boats less than 18 feet broad and 90 feet long, and carrying but seven thousand bushels of wheat; but, on the contrary, to recommend that any new locks on those Canals shall be sufficient to pass boats 25 feet broad and 200 feet long, and carrying at least eighteen thousand bushels.

Such an enlargement of our Canal locks, without any alteration in the channel, new deep and broad enough, it was clearly shown to Congress, in behalf of the State of New-York, would practically save in transportation, from Chicago to New-York, fifteen cents a bushel on the whole cereal crop of the West, already exceeding one hundred millions of bushels yearly passing through the Lakes—a saving which would of itself, in a single year, very nearly reimburse the whole cost of the proposed enlargements in New-York and Illinois.

In face of such a fact and the enormous advantages so easily gained, and their immensely increasing importance in the future, and in view of a National Convention assembling under such auspices, and its ability to secure speedy success, it would be infatuation indeed for the State to yield to any hasty feeling of disappointment or impatience, by building any more of its Canal locks to be used for this vast Western trade, of the scanty size now existing. Such an act would be a practical and suicidal abandonment of all idea of any further improving our great channel of transportation, and a distinct declaration that New-York did not really need any increased facilities, but was ready to acquiesce in the vigorous measures which the wide-spread West would undoubtedly commence for obtaining the speedy enlargement of the Welland Canal and the construction of the Ottawa Canal, and through those capacious Canadian channels a cheaper and better route to the Atlantic.

It cannot be possible that either branch of our State Legislature can so stultify itself.

AN EXCELLENT LETTER FROM GEN. DIX.—The following letter was written by Gen. DIX to a citizen of Cooperstown, in this State. It states very clearly and forcibly his views of the character of the war, and of the means by which he believes it will be carried to a successful close. We commend it to public attention:

FORTRESS MONROE, Jan. 16, 1863.

MY DEAR SIR: I have received your letter, and also pleasure in replying to it, though I cannot at this moment give you any interesting account of the progress of the war here. The enemy is in force near me, and in this region of mud delay and obstacles are nearly impossible, except by railroads and water carriage.

I have never doubted the successful termination of the war. I do not doubt it now, if we prove true to ourselves. If our people are willing to make the sacrifices necessary to carry it through; if all parties will unite in support of the Government of the country; if men and money are furnished as they are needed, we shall triumph and maintain the integrity of the States. On the other hand, if we are divided among ourselves; if we yield a reluctant support to the war; if we give aid and comfort to the enemy by embarrassing those who are charged with the responsibility of upholding the authority of the Government, we shall be lost and treason will triumph.

I do not anticipate a result so disgraceful to us and so disastrous to all stable government. I look to our people for unshrinking perseverance and for a steady and patriotic support of the war, no matter at what sacrifice of comfort or property or life. I do not expect it to be terminated by any one great success. I rely on working out the results by wearing down treason. I earnestly hope, notwithstanding the strong party feeling which exists in our State, that all will be united and will act with renewed vigor on the great question of upholding the Government and the Union against an unholy and treasonable effort to destroy them. If we do not, we shall lose the respect of the whole civilized world, and leave to our children a lasting inheritance of dishonor and shame.

In full confidence that our people will do their duty,

I am, truly, yours, JOHN A. DIX.

ANDREW DIXON, Esq.

How to Build Steam Rams.

In a state of war we learn more of the military art in a year than we learn in a generation of peace; and if a nation has the wisdom to heed the lessons thus learned, a long generation of peace is likely to follow a brief period of war. For twenty years the round tower of the Monitor has been before this Government as a powerful war instrument, and twenty more would have found it unused but for the encounter with the Merrimac, which taught its value in a way that could not be mistaken; and now we have Monitors as naturally as if Noah had built one on his ark and left us his specifications. Speed in a war ship has been held secondary to battery power, notwithstanding the lesson which the Constitution taught us in the war of 1812; but now the Alabama has demonstrated the inefficiency of strong batteries, without the speed either to seek or avoid the enemy, and hereafter we must rely for success, in naval warfare, upon that science which can command the resources of natural laws, and compel the elements to serve, and not to rule the mind of man.

Now we have another lesson of adversity, ever useful to the wise, in the loss of the Indianola, on the Mississippi River. She was a heavy iron-clad "ram," supposed to be invulnerable by shot, and irresistible by any vessel she might strike with her metal prow; but she fell an easy prey to two other vessels considered of no value, and in comparison with her powerless. Now that she is gone, we see her defect plainly enough, and war has taught the lesson. She could not control her position. The two light vessels, the Queen and Webb, could run round her while she could not turn, and thus could "ram" her, first on one side, then on the other, till the mailed giant was beaten to death; while, at any time, one blow from her prow would have crushed both of her assailants like egg shells. Nature gives us a familiar illustration of the method of attack in the case of the kingbird and the hawk, between which, in a contest, the more powerful hawk is always defeated. The kingbird, swift of wing and easy to turn, flies first on one side, then on the other, and then above the unwieldy hawk, and picks out his eyes with impunity, while the powerful bird strives in vain to inflict a blow with his claws or beak which, if once given, would destroy his puny enemy without a struggle. So the unfortunate crew of the Indianola were moving their guns from side to side, but the enemy could turn so easily that they were always on the weak side; and as the great ram could not turn after them, they struck her flat side with their pointed prows, and of course destroy her. A North River steamboat, striking "end on," can run through any war-vessel in existence. Therefore a war-vessel must oppose end to end, or be destroyed.

How are we building our ocean "rams?" Have they the means of turning at pleasure? If not, they are likely to fall victims to some smaller craft, just as the hawk does to the kingbird, or the Indianola did to the Queen. A vessel four hundred feet long, with a single screw propeller, cannot turn in the North River, and would certainly be destroyed by a shot-proof ram of one hundred feet in length, which could rapidly change its position and make an attack upon the side of the monster. It is apparent, therefore, now that the lesson is taught us by the Indianola, that the first condition to be attained in a ram is power to keep "end on" to the enemy; and that a "ram" without that power, however great and strong otherwise, is powerless in the presence of an enemy which has it.

The Stevens battery has two screws, and can thus command her position, which is one great element of her value; but others are building with only one screw, and are, therefore, obviously fatally defective. Let us learn in time.

The Missouri Legislature.

JEFFERSON CITY, Saturday, March 7.

Mr. GRIMSHAW introduced a bill, in the Senate, to-day, for the gradual extinction of Slavery in Missouri, which was read twice and ordered to be printed. The bill provides that all children born of slave mothers, after the 4th of July, 1863, be born free; all such children to be apprenticed to the owners of their mothers till they arrive at the age of twenty-one, and all children born of such apprentices to be apprenticed to the person to whom the mother is apprenticed, until such mother reaches the age of twenty-one, this term of apprenticeship to conform to the general act concerning apprentices, passed 1856.

The House passed an act, defining the qualifications of teachers in Missouri, which prescribes that all persons who have enrolled themselves as disloyal, or have been, or may hereafter be convicted by military authority, and released on oath or bond, unless since they have given aid and comfort to the enemy, they shall have been in the active service of the United States army or loyal militia service.

The bill providing for a ballot system of voting through the State was discussed all the afternoon, without action.

The Trouble in Boston.

BOSTON, Sunday, March 8.

The riot broke out afresh this morning, on a small scale, but was put down by the soldiers without anybody being hurt.

Several shots were fired on both sides.

The authorities were vigilant in causing the arrest of suspected parties, and a large number are now in jail.

The Mayor has issued a proclamation, closing the saloons for two days, and warning the citizens against making any demonstrations.

Two more negroes died to-day from injuries received, but the number of deaths will not be as great as at first reported.

Thirty-five buildings were destroyed. Contributions are being raised to relieve the sufferers.

THE FINANCES OF THE NATION.

Success of the Financial Measures—Absorption of Government Bonds—Reduction of Private Debts—Payment of Debts, the Easy Test of Money—Fallacious Price of Gold.

THE TREASURY, Tuesday, March 3, 1863.

I cannot help congratulating the Secretary of the Treasury, and the nation, on the adoption of those financial measures, which, in my opinion, will carry the country safely through the war. It is not a question whether they are strictly the best in theory, or adapted to any particular theory of finance or economy. The practical question was, How shall we raise money for the purposes of the war, without incurring the risk of bankruptcy? So far, it will be admitted, the operations of the Treasury have been eminently successful. And I think it demonstrable that the financial measures just adopted will be equally so.

You will remember, that one of the first assertions of the London Times, and other maligners of the United States was, that we could not get money; nobody would lend it to us. As nobody was ever asked, that delusion was soon over. Then it was said we would soon be bankrupt, and the bubble of the Union be blown up. Time has corrected that delusion, and shown that the financial stability of this country exceeds that of Great Britain. But, the London wiseacres are still looking out for some vast financial storm. If any such come, it will reach England before it does this country. At present, there is nothing to prevent our going on financially and commercially and prosperously, as if no war existed. Let me state the leading facts of both national and individual finance, as they now stand.

The first object is to furnish the Government with money, that it may carry on the war successfully. How shall this be done? There are three ways of doing this. We may send our bonds into the markets of the world—as we did railroad bonds—in which case, they will go largely to Europe. To this mode, there are two decisive objections. First. Every dollar paid to Europe, except for what we must have in material, is a dollar lost. Secondly. The bonds never could be sold, except at enormous sacrifice. Most of the bonds for the war loans of 1812-15 were sold for seventy cents on a dollar. Every consideration of prudence urges upon us to keep all our evidences of National debt at home. For, no matter what the Government may owe A, or what it may owe B, it is certain that what is owed to our own people is no loss. The nation is no poorer for it, although the distribution of incomes may be seriously affected by it. Still, there is no positive loss to the nation. Happily, for us—most fortunate it was—the Secretary of the Treasury and the bankers, who advised with him, took this idea at first, and determined that the nation should carry on the war by its own means. The blood and the treasure of its cost should be alike its own.

Another mode of raising money is by the continuous issue of Treasury notes, which, in our present system, we have made legal tenders. This does very well for a certain sum, which I think may go as high as five hundred million. But if this process be continued too far, they must eventually depreciate very much. The Government having gone so far, on the principle of keeping its credit at par, it is certainly very objectionable to issue these notes to so great an extent as to depreciate their value materially in regard to the staple articles of produce. Hence it is necessary to adopt some other plan, and accordingly the Secretary has devised one which, I think, must be entirely successful. This is a mixed plan. The idea is to make the issue of notes, present and future, no more than is equal to the real demands of business, in which case they will be maintained, in regard to ordinary merchandise, very nearly at par. For all the residue of Government wants the reliance is upon the sale of bonds. And here the practical question is how to maintain the value of these bonds at such rates as will induce the investment of capital on them? That is the real problem, and it seems to me it is successfully solved. The man who invests money invests two things—security and interest, and the more of both he has, the better he is placed. Let us look at this. It is not possible to conceive that the Government should fail on the bonds, even though it should fail on the notes. Notes of circulation must be paid in full; but bonds are paid only by interest. For example, two thousand millions of dollars in bonds require but one hundred and twenty millions per annum to pay the interest; but the tariff and internal revenue will not produce less than two hundred millions per annum. Thus the security of United States bonds—that is the payment of the interest—is undoubtedly perfect to an amount greater than we can conceive will be required. The next point is, the interest; and here is a very curious fact—that the more the Treasury notes (which it is observed are a legal tender for debt) depreciate, the greater is the interest on the bonds; for that is paid in gold. If A receives $6 interest on a hundred in gold, when gold is at 70 premium, he receives 10.20 per cent. interest in a currency which will pay his debts. It is very plain that there is a temptation to invest in Government bonds not afforded by any other security. It is impossible that intelligent people should not see this and act upon it. But there is still wanting a steady market, a place of absorption, and this will, in all probability, be found by the operation of the Bank bill. Without interfering at all with the old banks, there are many parts of the country where banks may be established, under the national law, with advantage. Gradually these banks will come into operation, and afford a steady market for bonds. I think, therefore, the financial scheme will be entirely successful. But, if the bonds are slow of sale, the Secretary has his interest-bearing notes, and is in any event entirely secure against the want of money.

While the public debt is increasing, let me note a set-off against that of no small importance. It is the continual diminution of private debts. In the annual report of the Commissioner of Statistics to the Legislature of Ohio, there is a fact which is a test of this question: The annual mortgage debt, put upon record, is five millions less than usual. The usual average is about $29,000,000, so that the falling off is about 18 per cent.: in other words, that is the diminution of individual debts of that description. I suppose that is about the general ratio of reduction. I estimate the entire individual and corporate debts of the country—independent of the National Government—at about two thousand millions. In that case, the reduction of debt generally in 1861-'62 was equal to three hundred and sixty millions of dollars. I think it not beyond the truth.

And now, let me say, in reference to money, that its capacity to pay debts is a far better test of its real value than gold can possibly be; simply because there is a far greater demand for money to pay debts than to buy gold, and the foreign debts are comparatively small. The Government notes pay debts, and gold can do no more. The price of gold, as it now stands, is wholly speculative. It way to more, or it may be less, according to the ability of the speculators in stocks to keep up the price: but that it is no test of real value, is determined at once by reference to the price of wheat, of cotton and of land. Some depreciation of Treasury notes there is, but not to more than one-fourth the nominal premium on gold. I repeat, then, that I must congratulate the Secretary and the country on the apparent, and I believe real, success of his financial measures. They do credit to his sound judgment, and to the patriotic discernment of Congress.

The report of the destruction of the rebel steamer Rosalie by the Monitor Montauk had reached Port Royal.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

The Alleged Imprisonment of Citizens of New-York in Fort McHenry—The Broadway Railroad—The Salt Question—The Gold Speculation—Passage of the Supply Bill in the Assembly—The Susquehanna Railroad, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Saturday, March 7, 1863.

The Speaker this morning announced the Committee on the subject of the detention of citizens of this State in Fort McHenry, as follows: Mr. KEAN, Mr. RUTHERFORD and MAYHAN. It will be remembered that this Committee grows out of a communication presented to the House to the effect that four citizens of this State had been confined for upward of a year and a half in Fort McHenry, under circumstances of the most aggravated character, without being able to obtain a hearing, without any charge against them, and without prospect of redress or release.

The first communication of any kind on the subject of a railroad in Broadway was a remonstrance presented to the House this morning. It is understood that the Committee will give the Senate project, known as the Law-Stage project, a hearing Wednesday next. The friends of this project profess considerable confidence.

The salt question, which is really one of very great importance to the whole State, is undergoing examination before two Committees, on petitions from different sections of the State, which ask that the State duty shall be increased one cent, and that the manufacture of salt be opened to free competition. It is claimed, also, that the Onondaga Company, as at present organized and protected, is an overshadowing monopoly, whose dividends the last year have been enormous—from 200 to 400 per cent. It is contended that, as in every other branch of manufacture, this should be left open to free competition, which would result in giving the consumer as good, if not better salt, at a cheaper rate. The testimony is conflicting, especially on the point of profits. That they are large, is conceded, though it is contended, I believe, that they have been flowing principally to fortuitous circumstances, that cannot be relied upon in future. It is evident that the temper of the Legislature is in favor of some legislation; but it is not always safe to predict, as between the people and the monopoly, which side will gain the advantage.

Mr. DRAW gave notice in the House, this morning, of a bill to meet the exigency growing out of the gold question; principally, I believe, to supply deficiencies in the late act of Congress. I do not doubt that the Legislature will promptly respond to any call necessary to protect the country from speculation in gold, which has already resulted in so much evil as well as loss to many of the speculators.

The Annual Supply bill passed the Assembly, today. I believe this is unprecedented, the passage of the bill being, at least, two weeks earlier than any previous year. Great credit is due to Mr. DRAW, the able Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, for his labors in this connection, and the praise so justly due is freely accorded to him and the Committee of which he is the efficient head.

The Susquehanna Railroad bill having passed the Senate, will now make its appearance in the House, where its supporters feel a good deal of confidence of favorable action. The measure having been twice vetoed, and once pocketed by Gov. MORGAN, the probable action of Gov. SEYMOUR is canvassed with considerable freedom. The friends of the bill profess a feeling of safety in his hands, not without good reason, it is believed.

Among the documents for popular circulation is the speech of Mr. REMSEN, of St. Lawrence, delivered in the House on the Governor's Message. The subject is ably treated, and is eminently a document for the people.

The necessary legislation initiated is in a good state of forwardness; and, notwithstanding the late day on which the House organized, its work is very little behind.

RODERICK.

What Maj.-Gen. C. M. Clay is Doing.

WASHINGTON, March 5, 1863.

To the Editor of the National Intelligencer:

In your article of to-day, headed "A Recalcitrant Soldier and Diplomatist," you show the same spirit which led you to defend the mob at Lexington which destroyed my press and overthrew two Constitutions—that of the State and that of the National Government. As the Senate will probably act upon my appointment to-day, before a reply can reach them, I write this only to call the attention of your readers to an article of self-defence which I am preparing for the New-York TIMES. Till then I only ask of the people a suspension of opinion in reference to the thick calumnies which fall upon me.

DEAFNESS

NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.

From the Journal of Commerce.

EXCITING NEWS FOR THE DEAF.—An instrument called Dr. Von Eisenberg's Air Passage Expander and Regulator, a gigantic machine, weighing nearly five hundred pounds, about five feet in height, a most wonderful apparatus for restoring sight and hearing, has just arrived for Dr. Von Eisenberg, the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, and will be on exhibition at the Doctor's office, No. 816 Broadway, for a few days previous to its use. The instrument is constructed decidedly on the most scientific principles. To give a detailed description would require a greater space than we can now spare. Our Oculist and Aurist comes to do everything in the line of his profession on a gigantic scale. The new instrument for restoring hearing to the deaf and sight to the blind is so constructed that it cannot fail to open the most obstructed air passages. His new consulting rooms, No. 816 Broadway, are correspondingly magnificent, and his practice as Aurist and Oculist large and eminently successful.

From the New-York Evening Express, Feb. 14, 1863.

RESTORATION AMONG THE DEAF.—The unrivaled skill of Dr. Von Eisenberg, the far-famed Oculist and Aurist, of No. 816 Broadway, has made quite a sensation among the Deaf and Blind by his wonderful cures, which attract the Deaf, Blind and those suffering from Chronic Catarrh, from all parts of the Union to his office. The number of his certificates of really wonderful cures are is daily. For the benefit of sufferers, we submit the following, which requires no comment:

NEW-YORK, Feb. 6, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain. JOHN TAYLOR,
No. 13 Livingston-st., Brooklyn.

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.
CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.

NO. 128 MERCER-ST., NEW-YORK.
J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation by your skillful hand, and without pain, I opened to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the important gift of skill you possess. I beg to thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant.
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 6, 1862.
DR. VON EISENBERG—Dear Sir: Before taking leave of you, after your most successful operation on my ear, allow me to express my sincere thanks that, by your scientific surgical performance, I am enabled to hear distinctly, and enjoy a pleasure of which I have long been deprived—even a year. May you be rewarded by being enabled to perform many similar, to benefit other sufferers, and to your own emolument.
Allow me to present my kindest regards, and assure you of my grateful remembrance. Respectfully,
A. McDONALD REYNOLDS,
Captain Marines, United States.

NEW-YORK, May 17, 1862.
I have much pleasure in being able to certify that I have suffered for a long time from Sclerotitis, and nearly complete loss of sight. I have consulted a great many, as well as Oculists, without any relief, not only without benefit, but my case was given up as incurable. I despaired of ever recovering my sight, until hearing of Dr. Von Eisenberg's great cures. I determined to place myself under his care as a last resource. It resulted in a complete cure. From the skillful treatment and attention which I experienced from the Doctor, I have no hesitation in recommending all those suffering from disease of the eye to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being completely cured. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony.
JOSEPH WALKER, Gunsmith.

A PURE AND POWERFUL TONIC, CORRECTIVE AND ALTERATIVE OF WONDERFUL EFFICACY IN DISEASE OF THE STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.
PROTECTIVE PROPERTIES.
PREVENTS FEVER AND AGUE AND BILIOUS REMITTENT FEVER; FORTIFIES THE SYSTEM AGAINST MIASMA AND THE EVIL EFFECTS OF UNWHOLESOME WATER AND INTOXICATION.
AIDS THE ORGANS OF DIGESTION AND THE BOWELS;
STRENGTHENS THE NERVES, AND TENDS TO PROLONG LIFE.
REMEDIAL PROPERTIES.
CURES DYSPEPSIA, LIVER COMPLAINT, SICK AND NERVOUS HEADACHE, GENERAL DEBILITY, NERVOUSNESS, DEPRESSION OF SPIRITS, CONSTIPATION, COLIC, INTERMITTENT FEVERS, SEA-SICKNESS, CRAMPS AND SPASMS, AND ALL COMPLAINTS OF EITHER SEX, ARISING FROM BODILY WEAKNESS, WHETHER INHERENT IN THE SYSTEM OR PRODUCED BY SPECIAL CAUSES.

Nothing that is not wholesome, genial, and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind; no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants.

It is well to be fortarmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against malaria engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water, and other external causes, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS may be relied on as a safeguard.

In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy. Thousands who resort to it under apprehension of an attack, escape the scourge; and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance, are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs.

Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous Attacks, Lowness of Spirits and Fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes.

The agony of Bilious Colic is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by constantly resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented.

For Sea Sickness it is a positive specific—either removing the contents of the stomach, and with them the terrible nausea, or relieving the internal irritation by which the disposition to vomit is caused.

As a General Tonic, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of Constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and Debility and Decrepitude arising from Old Age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases, it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to reinforce and reestablish them.

Last, but not least, it is the Only Safe Stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acrid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day.

The fact is well known to physicians that the basis of all the medicinal stimulants of the pharmacopœia is fiery and unpurified alcohol, an article which no confection can deprive of its pernicious properties. The liquors of commerce are still worse. They are all adulterated. Hence the Faculty, while universally admitting the necessity for diffusive tonics, hesitate to employ those in common use lest the remedy should prove deadlier than the disease. During the last twenty years, the quality of these articles has been continually deteriorating, and it is notorious that the fluids which bear the names of the various spirituous liquors, are flavored and fired up with corrosive drugs, to a degree which renders them dangerous to the healthy and murderous to the sick. Under these circumstances, medical men are glad to avail themselves of a preparation absolutely free from these objections, and combining the three invaluable properties of a stimulant, a corrective, and a gentle laxative. HOSTETTER'S BITTERS are therefore held in high estimation by our most eminent practitioners, and bid fair to supersede all other invigorants, both in public hospitals and in private practice. No family medicine has been so universally, and, it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 13 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 20 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been in the hands of others, and they have failed to cure you, I can and will cure you. By his special improvement in this most neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in from 3 days, without confinement or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestiges eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure adapted by writing a full diagnosis of their cases, addressed to DR. WARD, No. 13 Laight-st., this only place. Call, send or write.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has cured more than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of life; cures without the nauseous and injurious effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequences of mercury, but possesses the peculiarity valuable that it does not contaminate the system, so that a child may be born after the use of this remedy is taken. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Invalids in this respect has become so well known, that scarcely one in every department of medical knowledge fails to appreciate it, for hardly every family has not been benefited by it, or some friend or physician, in regard to some painful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear; in a word, it is so great, that there is not a family in the country of the City that does not know it, and when they find their lives are not to easily swallowed, they then demand that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 8 Division-st. Book, for 15 three-cent stamps, 200 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

All persons believing themselves to be overassessed, must make application to the Commissioners during the period above mentioned, in order to obtain the relief provided by law. The Act of 1859 provides that "During the time the books shall be open to public inspection, as herein before provided, any person who may make to any person considering himself aggrieved by the assessed valuation of his real or personal estate, to have the same corrected, if such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of real estate, it must be made in writing, stating the grounds of objection to the assessment, and thereupon the Commissioners shall examine into the complaint, and if, in their judgment, the assessment is erroneous, they shall cause the same to be corrected. NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Arrival of Dispatches from Richmond to the English and French Ministers.

Food Growing Scarce in the Confederacy.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 8.

DISPATCHES FROM RICHMOND.

A bearer of dispatches to the English and French Ministers arrived here this morning, having left Richmond on Saturday morning. He brought copies of the Richmond papers of Thursday, Friday and Saturday. They contain no news of importance. The dispatches and papers were delivered at once to the English and French Ministers.

It appears from his statements that provisions of all kinds are daily becoming more scarce, and that considerable apprehension prevails among the poorer classes that starvation will sooner or later overtake them. The Government, by impressment, manage to get enough for the soldiers, such as it is. Vessels are constantly running the blockade all along the coast, by which means the rebels are supplied with shoes and clothing. They have now an abundance of both these articles. The rebels are confident of holding their own at Vicksburgh, Charleston and Savannah.

A REFUGEE FROM RICHMOND.

A refugee from Richmond, who arrived here to-day, says that, during the past three weeks, at least twenty-five thousand troops passed through Richmond on their way from the South. Several thousand troops had also been sent to reinforce PAYNE, on the Blackwater. Great distress prevails among the poorer classes in Richmond, owing to the high price of living.

THE OFFICE OF PROVOST-MARSHAL.

The new importance given to the office of Provost-Marshal by the Conscription law has started a movement for the appointment of Gen. BUTLER to that position. Mr. SEWARD, however, is said strongly to urge the claims of Ex-Congressman DUREE for the place.

GEN. SHIELDS.

It is reaffirmed that Gen. SHIELDS has been ordered to California, with a view to his resignation being sent in on his arrival.

THE GOVERNORSHIP OF DACOTAH.

It is stated that Hon. JOHN P. POWER now declines the Governorship of Dacotah.

THE PERUVIAN CLAIMS.

E. G. SQUIER is being urged for Commissioner to settle the Peruvian claims. Three Commissioners are to be appointed, only one of whom, Mr. LEONARD SWETT, of Illinois, is understood to have been yet appointed.

CLAIMING FOREIGN ALLEGIANCE.

The offices of the city magistrates are hourly besieged by persons claiming foreign allegiance, mostly Irishmen, not a few of whom have voted for years at city elections, while a goodly proportion are now employed in the Quartermaster, Commissary and other departments of the Government.

THE NEWSBOYS.

A very interesting meeting was held last week, in behalf of the newsboys of this city. It will be remembered that a joint resolution was passed by Congress, authorizing the use of a portion of the vacant public ground in Judiciary-square, by Prof. JOSEPH HENRY, J. W. FORNEY and HENRY BEARD, as Trustees, for the erection thereon of a suitable building for the newsboys. In addition to other business transacted at the meeting, a Building Committee, to act in conjunction with the above Trustees, was chosen, consisting of Dr. Bliss, Henry Beard, A. M. Gangewer, Miss Alice Hooper, Mrs. D. Bliss and Mrs. A. M. Gangewer.

JUDICIAL AND TERRITORIAL OFFICERS.

The following nominations have been sent to the Senate, and unanimously confirmed:

Hon. DAVID WILMOT, of Pennsylvania, and EBENEZER PECK, of Illinois, to be Associate Judges of the Court of Claims under the new law. This Court now consists of five Judges whose decisions will be final.

Hon. JOHN A. GURLEY, of Ohio, Governor; Hon. Mr. GOODWIN, of Maine, Chief Justice, and RICHARD H. MCCORMICK, Secretary of the Territory of Arizona.

Hon. W. WALLACE, late Delegate from Washington Territory, Governor; Hon. Mr. EDGERTON, of Ohio, Chief Justice of the Territory of Idaho.

THE DISTRICT JUDGES.

The President has not yet sent to the Senate the nominations of Judges for the Courts of the District of Columbia, and as a consequence, judicial business is at a "dead lock" here. The number of applicants for the positions is on the increase.

GENERALS CONFIRMED.

The Military Committee of the Senate to-day reported favorably on the confirmation of eight or ten of the Major-Generals nominated by the President, and thirty-five or forty of the Brigadiers.

SICK SOLDIERS.

The number of soldiers discharged daily from the convalescent camp at Alexandria is very large. The Surgeons in charge of the camp say that about one-half of the men who are returned from the hospitals as fit for duty, upon examination prove to be totally unfit for further service. The number of men who have passed through this camp since its establishment is about twenty-five thousand.

HEALTH AND MORTALITY OF THE ARMY.

The Surgeon-General, previous to the adjournment of Congress, sent to the Senate an elaborate document relative to the health and mortality of the army. The document will shortly be published.

AN IMPORTANT ORDER.

Upon the recommendation of the Surgeon-General, the Secretary of War has caused to be issued the following important order:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, FEB. 26, 1863. (Extract.)

SPECIAL ORDERS, No. 69.—23.—1. The Board of Medical Officers now in session at the Convalescent Camp, near Alexandria, will report daily to the Commanding Officer the names of soldiers examined and found fit for duty, and the commanding officer will have the soldiers thus designated returned to their regiments without delay.

2. The Board will designate those soldiers who should be placed in hospital, and the senior Surgeon on duty in the camp, and the Medical Director in this city, will have all soldiers so designated promptly sent to hospital in this District.

3. Three surgeons from each army corps of the Potomac will be ordered at once to the Convalescent Camp near Alexandria, Virginia, there to examine into the physical condition of the soldiers in that camp belonging to their respective corps, to report in writing to the officer in command of that camp the names of those fit for duty, and to the surgeon in charge, the names of those who should be placed in hospitals. They will also make out certificates of disability for those soldiers who, in their opinion, are physically disabled for military duty.

4. The commanding officer of the Convalescent Camp, and the surgeon in charge, will send soldiers to regiments and hospitals according to the reports of the surgeons.

5. The Surgeon-General will designate one hospital in each of the cities, New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, as hospitals for soldiers who are, or soon will be fit for duty, and the medical officers in charge of hospitals east of the Alleghany Mountains will send to the "convalescent hospitals," under such regulations as the Medical Directors, each acting for his own district, may prescribe, all soldiers who are decidedly convalescent, and who will soon be fit for duty.

6. The Medical Directors in the cities named, will report once a week to their respective military commanders the number of men in the "convalescent hospitals" ready for duty and the regiments to which they belong.

7. The military commanders above referred to, will send direct to their regiments the men so reported by Medical Directors, as often as the circumstances of the service will permit, but in no case to permit the hospitals for convalescents to be unduly crowded with men fit for duty.

By order of the Secretary of War.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 8.

REVENUE DECISION.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made the following decision concerning the assessment and collection of taxes, where the liability existed previous to the 3d of March, 1863, namely:

The act of the 3d inst., amending the Excise Law of July 1, 1862, will not relieve parties from payment of taxes previously assessed, or from liability to assessment in all cases where such liability existed at the time of the passage of the first-named act.

MILEAGE.

It is said that Hon. SYDNEY DEAN, of New-York, is the only member of the late House of Representatives who positively refused to receive a third mileage. The aggregate amount paid to gentlemen on this account is probably $80,000.

COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY.

THOMAS OLCOTT, of Albany, well known in financial circles, has been nominated by the President as Comptroller of the Currency, under the act providing a national currency, secured by United States bonds.

GOV. JOHNSON OF TENNESSEE.

Gov. ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee, has arrived here.

AN ARREST.

Detectives HOGAN and DUGAN this afternoon arrested one of the most adroit hotel and Western river thieves in the country, named RAGGER NOBLE, as he was leaving the city in a railroad train for the North. He had plundered nearly all our hotels and amassed considerable booty. The proofs against him are such as will certainly secure his conviction.

INDIAN AGENT.

Rev. CLINTON C. HUTCHINSON, of Kansas, was confirmed, Saturday, as Agent for the Ottawas, Chippewas and Christian Indians of that State. These tribes were, until recently, connected with the Sacs and Foxes, and as their agent, Mr. HUTCHINSON came to this city last Summer with the Ottawas, and an important and unique treaty was made with them by Secretary USHER and Commissioner DOLE. Under its provisions, the Ottawas, who are well advanced in civilization, are to become citizens in five years, receive inalienable head rights of 80 acres of land each; and there are to be set apart twenty thousand acres of valuable lands, to endow a manual labor university. The remainder of their lands, about 20,000 acres, will be sold to actual settlers only, to such persons as shall be acceptable to the council of the tribe. The Ottawas are not wealthy, but they thus give largely to establish a University, to which they propose to admit advanced pupils from other tribes, and to this and they will ask the assistance of their generous white brothers. This is a plan of the Indians themselves. The tribe has ever been loyal, and for this has suffered at the hands of the Border ruffians.

THE DEAD LION.

The Thirty-seventh Congress—What It Was and What It Did.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, March 4, 1863.

The Thirty-seventh Congress closed its session this morning. There was nothing out of the regular routine in the hours immediately preceding its demise, nor in the manner of its dissolution. It passed away, indeed, with less excitement and turmoil than has heretofore seemed to be a necessity of the dying spasms.

Dead it is. Its history may be written now. All of Cause to which it could give birth it has produced. Effects may follow, but the fountain-head is dried. It had predecessors. It will doubtless be succeeded by many others. None of the past have equaled, will any of the future excel it? The destinies of the country have been, more or less, interwoven with every session of every Congress. But was there ever a Congress that so held within its grasp the vitality of the country? I think not.

It has made a record indeed. It has saved or destroyed the nation. If it has erred, its errors will annihilate us. If it has acted wisely, it has perpetuated Republican institutions for ages.

Within its life this Congress has seen the rise and progress of a rebellion unparalleled in history, and its greatest efforts have been called forth to provide the means and the men necessary to maintain the supremacy of the Government.

Without contrasting in its members any giant intellects—almost stripped of historic names—with less individuality, less statesmanship and less eloquence, than almost any of its predecessors, it has made but an ignoble addition to the forensic history of the Capitol. With one or two exceptions in the Senate, and with no exceptions in the House, the quality of the speech-making would be quoted at ninety per cent discount, even taking the Congress of '60 and '61 as the standard. In most legislative bodies, a large proportion of what is said were best left unsaid. In this Congress, whom dying breath is yet warm, every word of what has been uttered—every sentence that has been rounded—every sentiment that has been given birth, might have been suppressed, and the world would have suffered little for what it would have lost.

But, judged by acts alone, this Congress has a stature that overlooks all that has been before. "By its deeds shall you know them." By its deeds—how the record, as you run it down, appals you with their magnitude. It seems to have been the destiny of these amateurs men to have molded into form all the great theories of the giant intellects, who could utter such gigantic words, but were powerless to concentrate votes. The voices of the past, though dead, have spoken through the last two years with a power denied them while they lived. HAMILTON, WEBSTER, CLAY, the "Old Man eloquent," the traduced martyrs of the grave, have walked again through the halls of legislation, not as of old they walked in life, but with the majesty—aye, and the power—of the mighty dead. Look how they have crystallized what was so long held in solution.

1. A banking system, to which the old United States Bank was indeed "an obsolete idea."

2. A tariff, in comparison with which HENRY CLAY'S would be considered Free Trade.

3. An increase of the Regular Army, of which even the most infatuated of the Pointers would have never dreamed.

4. A centralization of power, such as HAMILTON might have eulogized as magnificent.

5. That Freedom for which "the Old Man Eloquent" pleaded so warmly.

These are a few of the measures which this Congress has given to the country. Interwoven with them are others of less prominency, but yet parts of which these four may be constituted the corner-stones.

Who, after this, shall proclaim a principle dead, because it is stabbed, and its life-blood ebbs away? What man so wise that may declare a theory unsound? Those who joined in the struggles for a national currency, for a protective tariff, for a Government strong enough to maintain itself, for that liberty which has been a boast (but a mockery) in '34, and '37, and '56, were weak-hearted indeed. They died before their time—leaving to posterity what seemed a doubtful legacy. Could their spirits again revisit the earth, they would learn that the faith they almost doubted has become a household word, and the stone that the builders of their day rejected, is now the chief of the corner.

A lesson, Mr. Editor. Shall not these records prove eloquent teachers to the great future that dawns upon us through the measures of this dead Congress, whose carcass already cumbers the earth? Who, hereafter, will feel that a principle dies, when an adverse canvass is published? Does the life go out with a breath? Is the voice silent, when the pulse ceases to beat? None of these. Patience, resignation, perseverance, are the echoes of the past. To the patriot in his solitude—to the statesman in his cabinet—to the politician in the forum—the concentrated history of this Congress preaches hope, firmness, honesty and consistency. It denounces time-serving, and proclaims truth. Seeing how "time at last brings all things even," who hereafter shall faint in the Summer heat—who shall shiver in the Winter's blast? The Summer's heat melts away the frost of Winter. Necessity has power that override the brain-phantoms of the visionary—that dissipate the sophistries of the schools and the pleadings of the hypocrites.

"The mills of the gods grind slowly,
But they grind exceeding fine."

It has been three-quarters of a century since the griets of HAMILTON were put in the hopper—a little less than that since a national currency, the conservating of our home industry and the freedom of the human race, were brought to the mill. They have come out at last—seemingly too long in the coming, but all the more welcome for the watching. Those who have waited impatiently have learned that only great freshets can turn the wheels of progress. They have learned, too, that only through storm-gusts, and lightnings and the crash of the thunder, comes the floods that set in motion the great machines of the world. "Events are never so far off as they seem—millenniums come frequently sooner than they are expected." These are the parting words—the words of promise—that the Thirty-seventh Congress utters as the curtain falls. Honor to it, that it has been equal to its days—that it has been strong when strength was needed. It has well fulfilled its destiny. If the seed it has sown perish because others refuse or neglect to give it nourishment, the crime will be at the door of those to whom the future is intrusted. Paul has planted. If Apollos waters, God will give the increase. LEQ.

GEN. WOOL IN RHODE ISLAND.

Enthusiastic Reception at Providence—Complimentary Speeches—Visit to Portsmouth Grove Hospital—Affecting Scenes, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Thursday, March 5, 1863.

Major-Gen. WOOL, commanding the Department of the East, accompanied by his Staff, arrived in this city this morning, in the early train from Worcester. The General was received at the depot by Col. GARDNER, of the Government Staff. As the cars entered the depot, the crowd which had assembled to honor the veteran soldier, greeted him with cheer upon cheer, and a Major-General's salute was fired by the Marine Artillery, under the command of Major SAMUEL A. PEARCE, Jr. As many were eager to see and hear the old hero of Buena Vista, the General gratified them by appearing upon the platform of the car, and addressing them briefly. He called to mind the sad condition of the country, and the danger of losing our power as a nationality. The efforts which are making to destroy the Government must be defeated or we perish utterly. He believed that we must have the whole nation; for if the doctrine of separation was allowed, instead of one country we should have thirty-four, and when we can find nobody else to fight, we shall be fighting among ourselves. The old General spoke with much vigor and earnestness, and he urged that the people must labor to restore our land to its pristine condition of glory before our doom as a country is sealed. After thanking the crowd for their spontaneous greeting, he entered a carriage with Col. GARDNER and Provost-Marshal HAMLIN, accompanied by the General's Staff, and proceeded to the State House, where the party was received by the Joint Committees of the General Assembly in the Governor's room. Here Gen. WOOL was introduced to Maj.-Gen. BURNSIDE and officers of the General's Staff, to Mayor KNIGHT and others. The party was then conducted to the Senate Chamber, where the old General was warmly welcomed by His Excellency Gov. COGGESHALL, the successor of Gov. SPRAGUE. He complimented Gen. WOOL on his patriotism and fidelity to his country, and welcomed him to Rhode Island. He spoke in terms of the heartiest praise of his long and honorable services in the several wars which had heretofore taken place between this country and others. He reviewed his valuable services in the present struggle to uphold the Government against treason and rebellion, and, in conclusion, expressed great pleasure in having the privilege of introducing to the Senate the veteran soldier. The members rose as the General replied. He appeared quite affected at the cordiality which was manifested in receiving him, and he spoke at length in reply. What he said was substantially as follows:

GEN. WOOL'S SPEECH IN THE LEGISLATURE.

I profoundly appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me. It was entirely unexpected. I came to New-England on the mission of inspecting the coast defences, and the attentions I have received, the kindness and hospitality I have everywhere experienced throughout the Eastern States, was entirely unlooked for. I am no politician. It is now nearly fifty one years since I entered the service of my country. During that period I think I have never been absent but once from the duties of service. I have been devoted to my country, and have never given attention to politics. I mention it merely to show that that these honors were all unexpected by me. In 1860 I called upon my countrymen to devote themselves to the defence of our country. I was assured that they were ready, and that they would not only furnish men but sufficient material to sustain the honor of our country and to preserve the Union. This war came upon us rather sooner than I anticipated. Our condition now is full of great peril. Not that we have not men enough and means enough to have succeeded in putting down the rebellion at once, but unfortunately we were without experience. Nearly a million of men have been brought into the field without any experience, and therefore if everything has not gone as you might have expected, it must be ascribed to inexperience. That you may say of all, from the head of the nation down to the private soldier. We caught not, however, from these circumstances to despair. We have a country which is invaluable. All the rights which man could desire, liberty of speech, liberty of action, right of suffrage, right of bearing arms, and as it has been heretofore, you would hardly know there was a Government. Civil war has brought evils with it that are inevitable. The exercise of arbitrary power has been necessary in some cases. My own view of the subject is that as our hand is to the plough, we ought never to look back. I go for the country, the whole country and nothing but the country. I am opposed to all compromises and lines of demarcation, going upon this principle, that if you allow separation to begin, you can't tell where it will end. Instead of one Government, you may have thirty-four. When separated, if we can't find foreign enemies to fight, we shall fight among ourselves. The object should be to settle this question now, and not entail it upon our children and our children's children. My object has been to call your attention seriously to put down this rebellion. I thank you for your generous reception.

The Senators were then introduced individually to Gen. WOOL and to the members of his Staff, and after receiving their congratulations, the party were conducted to the House of Representatives, where they were received by the Speaker, Col. F. W. MEREE, now of Gen. ROSECRANS' Staff, and introduced to the members. Here the General made a very graceful speech in reply to the Speaker. He spoke earnestly of the duty of the people to crush the rebellion, however great the work may have now become, and he delivered his remarks with a calmness and dignity of manner that enlisted the closest attention and the warmest admiration.

After this most cordial reception by the Governor and the Legislature, Gen. WOOL left for Newport. The steamer Perry was chartered by the State authorities to convey the party to Fort Adams, and a splendid collation was provided on board. Besides the General and his Staff, the party consisted of His Excellency Gov. COGGESHALL and his personal Staff, the Adjutant-General, Quartermaster-General, Paymaster-General and Commissary-General of the State, Lieut.-Col. BURNSIDE, of the Fourth Rhode Island, Lieut.-Col. ROBINSON, of the Royal Swedish Artillery, Capt. SHAW, United States Army, Maj. HAMLIN, Provost-Marshal of Rhode Island, Judge GREENE and a retinue of civil and military authorities. The weather was cold and blustering and the wind blew rather sharp from off the bay, but the party was provided with all the essential comforts and many of the nicer luxuries to dissipate the time occupied before reaching the fort. The veteran General appeared as hale and vigorous as many of the younger officers which accompanied him. He was quite animated in his conversation, and always seriously earnest in urging the use of every possible means to put down treason, whether North or South.

The steamer arrived at the fort about noon. The General was honored by a salute from the parapet. Lieut.-Col. SANDERSON, of the Fifteenth Regulars, commanding the garrison, received him at the sally port. Gen. WOOL passed around the fortifications, making a thorough inspection of the outworks, and was then conducted through the fort, where he made a critical examination of the interior and reviewed the garrison, consisting of two companies Fifteenth Infantry. After consuming about three hours at this point, and partaking of refreshments at the quarters of Col. SANDERSON, the General and party visited the United States frigate Santee, the school-ship of the Naval Academy, where he was received with due honors. Landing at Newport, the distinguished visitor was received by Mayor CRANSTON and a delegation of the City Council, and the whole party proceeded to the Atlantic House, where the veteran soldier was formally welcomed to the city, and its hospitalities tendered to him in the following resolutions:

Whereas, Maj.-Gen. JOHN E. WOOL, of the United States Army, commanding the Department of the East, is to visit this city on Thursday, the 5th inst., on a tour of inspection and examination; it is therefore Resolved, That we cordially welcome to the city, Maj.-Gen. JOHN E. WOOL, the veteran patriot and soldier, whose life has been earnestly and constantly devoted to his country.

Resolved, That the Mayor and Aldermen TOWNSEND, of the Board, together with President TAYLOR and Messrs. COGGESHALL and STODDARD, of the Common Council, be, and they hereby are, appointed a Committee to welcome Gen. WOOL to the city, and to extend to him its hospitalities as its guest during the time he remains here, and to make such arrangements as may be proper.

From the Atlantic House the party was conducted to the "Acquidneck," where a sumptuous dinner had been provided, and where the Mayor spoke eloquently and happily extended a warm welcome "to the hero of Queenstown and of Buena Vista." The General replied with much feeling, evidently surprised at the enthusiasm which had greeted him, and at the attention with which he had been honored. The citizens of Newport turned out almost en masse to do him honor, and the streets, both on his arrival and departure, were thronged with people.

The General and his party arrived back about 6 this evening, after inspecting the fort, examing into the defences of the bay, and paying a flying visit to the Portsmouth Grove Hospital, where for the fourth time he was received with a salute, and by the Guards drawn up in line at the landing. As the General passed through the wards of the hospital, many a poor wounded fellow from Antietam, or Fredericksburgh, or from some of the Peninsular battles, extended his palm to the old chief, with a glistening eye, and as the General passed on, muttered a "God bless you." The General seemed much moved at the enthusiasm manifested by the sick and wounded men, and as he moved by would shake them by the hand, or exchange a kind and hopeful word for themselves and for the cause. On the return to this city, several animated speeches were made in the saloon of the steamer by Gov. COGGESHALL, Bishop CLARK, Judge GREENE and Col. FRANK HOWE, and in which Gen. WOOL also participated, entertaining the company with personal reminiscences of some of the naval and military heroes of Rhode Island.

AT THE CITY HOTEL,

this evening, Gen. WOOL has been waited upon by many distinguished citizens, who were glad of the opportunity to pay their respects to him. Nearly all the military officers in command in the State service waited upon the brave old General, and were introduced to him by the Governor. Later in the evening the General and Staff accepted the hospitalities of Col. DAVID DUNHAM for the night, and will leave tomorrow morning for New-London and New-York.

Disastrous Fire in a Carpet Manufactory.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the extensive carpet manufactory of Messrs. E. S. HIGGINS & Co., situated on Forty-third street near the North River. The establishment is one of the largest in this country, of its kind. The main building is five stories in height, and extends from Forty-fourth to Forty-third streets, with a front of several hundred feet on the latter street. The flames were first discovered issuing from the windows of the second floor of the centre building, immediately over the boiler. This part of the premises is used as a drying-room. It was entirely destroyed, together with the machine-shop and the dye-room.

Just as the roof of this portion of the establishment fell in, fire was discovered bursting from the windows of the main building. The alarm was at once given, but the hose attached to several of the engines had burst, and this necessarily caused delay. Fire Marshal BAKER had ascended to the third and fourth floors, and there he found several score of buckets filled with water, which had been placed there to be used in case of fire. The Marshal ordered up men, who used the buckets so promptly that the main building was saved, with comparatively trifling damage. For a few minutes, however, no one who saw the flames, as they burst from the principal building, believed that any part of the premises could be saved, and the Fire Marshal, and those who so promptly obeyed his order, have the credit of saving several hundred thousand dollars' worth of property.

The loss to HIGGINS & Co. will amount to over $60,000. They are insured in City Companies to the extent of $250,000. The entire property is valued at over half a million. The fire is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. The Fire Marshal will investigate the circumstances attending its origin to-day.

THUMBIANA.—Since the microscopic wedding, to which the belles of this City surrendered columns much longer than the little couple are high, Gen. TOM THUMB and his pretty "little woman" have traveled from capital to capital in quiet guise, seeking retiracy from notoriety. As is the case with Gen. McCLELLAN, who, wherever he goes, is nominated for the Presidency by the enthusiastic peace-men, and with Gen. FREMONT, who travels anywhere without being pulled and hauled by the people, whose claim for recognition is, that they voted for him in 1856, and with any other man who has attained, accidentally or by noted conduct, public fame, JOE is with THUMB. He has been wined and dined in Philadelphia by the Brotherly Lovers; feted and feted at, danced and danced in Washington by everybody who is anybody, from a high public functionary down to the hotel boys; received by 2,500 curious people in Bridgeport, and literally bothered beyond patience, and far out of the bounds of mental endurance, wherever he might go to spend the honeymoon with his wife. At last he has, we learn, been obliged, in defence of comfort and of health, to go upon the boards in Boston, and we doubt not he will soon give his New-York patrons another opportunity of beholding, upon the same stage with himself, his wife, Commodore NUTT and Miss MINNIE WARREN—a social whist-party, whose combined length would not equal that of an average sized Kentuckian.

Arrivals in the City.

The eight Indiana chiefs, with their interpreters, Irvin Leihy and John B. Roy, of Wisconsin, who have been transacting some business with the Government at Washington, are stopping at the Metropolitan Hotel, previous to returning to their own nation.

Gen. Blenker, Maj. L. B. Bowen, and Capt. B. B. Childs, U. S. A., and Capt. W. F. Bates, U. S. N., are guests at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Hons. C. L. Vallandigham, G. H. Pendleton, of Ohio; W. Biglow, of Pennsylvania; A. L. Knapp, of Illinois; Amasa Walker, of Massachusetts; Drs. Euston, of Lima, Penn., and Whitney, of Chicago, and S. Dickens, of Memphis, are stopping at the St. Nicholas.

THE HOUSE OF SEWARD IN A NEW LINE OF BRACCANTUM.—Provision dealers were not a little astonished, the other day, to find an operator in the Butter market who made a clean sweep of every choice grade lot of that commodity offering, at the highest current rates. But they were still more surprised when they learned that this bold and persistent speculator was an agent of the dry goods house of SEWARD, in New-York City, and that the butter thus sought up was to be shipped to Europe to pay for importations, in lieu of exchange. Our market has since been left nearly bare of good stocks of Vermont and New-York butter, and prices have materially advanced. This "cute" and characteristic operation rather beats the cotton goods monopoly. There is but one more chance for a "spec" left for SEWARD in this quarter, and that is to go into the fish market. The cod and haddock have already taken the alarm, and struck out for deep water.—Boston Commercial Bulletin, March 7.

AMUSEMENTS.

MR. MARETZEK has given two performances of "Il Trovatore" at the Academy of Music—the second, on Saturday, being by far the best. The attendance on the last-mentioned occasion was, of course, miserably bad; sympathizing in that respect with the weather, which in a few hours ran through the entire gamut of wintry discomfort, and completely put a veto to locomotion. The audience, however, was a remarkable one, and numbered nearly all the leading musicians and critics in town—classes who don't usually trouble themselves about morning performances. To these may be added an extremely noisy clique of Cubans, who rendered their satisfaction with the least meritorious parts of the performance by shouting and stamping and raging in a way that at the Bowery Theatre would have led to their instant ejection. It is possible that these persons were actuated by the sincerest regard for art, but it would be well if they were also governed by a decent respect for the habits of the American public, who do not think it necessary to disturb their neighbors in the musical expression of individual approbation. Indeed, demonstrations of the kind that were noticeable on Friday evening, and to a less extent on Saturday, are always viewed with suspicion, and afford an easy sneer at the management, entirely unjust—as we know—in this case.

The performance at the matinée confirmed the favorable verdict that was awarded to the company on the previous night. Signor MASSOLINI was in admirable voice, and sang with spirit and immense effect. His voice is of a character that improves on acquaintance, being at first a little shrill. We have been accustomed for so long a period to the soft platitudes of tenori di grazia, that the appellant earnestness and volume of the tenore di robusto sounds strange in our ears. When it is remembered that nearly every modern work is written for the latter voice, it will be seen how valuable are the services of Signor MASSOLINI, who, to an organ of unusual power and fullness, combines an intelligence that is almost entirely new to us. As an actor, he accomplishes all that a singer should attempt—an easy, graceful and plastic interpretation of the obvious intensities of the rôle, without straining for impossible results. The third and fourth acts of "Il Trovatore" have hardly been made memorable by any other artist. Mme. MARSAN, whose agitation on the first night resulted in an occasional deduction from the correct intonation, sang on this occasion with remarkable correctness, and demonstrated in the most thorough manner that she is yet capable of renewing her European triumphs. Her voice is of magnificent proportions, and her style is large and eminently dramatic. That she is a conscientious artiste is proved in the third act, where with nothing to do she remains on the scene for the purpose of heightening the tenor's lyric opportunity—an act of condescension which is seldom performed gracefully. The aria restored in the last act is one of the best numbers in the opera, and is admirably rendered by Mme. MARSAN.

Signor BELLINI, whose indisposition was noticeable on Friday, was unable to sing on this occasion. An apology was made for his absence, and Signor TROTTO assumed his rôle with entire success. Mr. MARETZEK is fortunate, indeed, to have two such baritones in his company.

To-night, VERDI'S "Ballo in Maschera" will be played, entire, for the first time in New-York. The distribution includes all the great artists of Mr. MARETZEK'S troupe, and also introduces Mme. OSTRANDER-BERNOLI as the Page. There need be no hesitation in stating that the performance of the opera will be the best we have had in this City.

At the theatres the business of the week has been varied by a series of benefits, frequently involving a change of bill. The most noticeable of these was Miss HENRIQUES' benefit at Wallack's Theatre on Monday last, when "Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady" and the "Youthful Queen" were played to a house that has never been equaled. These pieces will be repeated to-morrow evening—owing to the success of the charming beneficiare in the principal rôles—when we hope a more liberal stage management will afford the lady a proper complement of attendants and courtiers in both pieces. A couple of funeral mutes, variously afflicted with hats or sticks, was all that was vouchsafed on Monday last—a beggarly array, considering the popularity of the lady and the reputation of the theatre. Mr. GUNESS, an admirable artist, took his benefit on Friday last, when the "Busybody" was revived. We shall probably have another opportunity of speaking of the work. To-night, Miss FANNY MORANT, a most valuable member of the company, takes her benefit, when LELAND'S commedietta of "Rose and Cherry" and the "Wonderful Woman" will be played. At Niblo's, Miss RICHINGS has had a benefit, (as if she did not receive one every night,) and at the Winter Garden Miss MARY PROVOST has gone through the same ceremony.

On Saturday night, despite the inch-deep slush upon the pave, the driving wind and the drenching rain, the music lovers of Brooklyn turned out three thousand strong, upon the occasion of the fourth concert of the current season, under the general management of the Philharmonic Society. A more brilliant sight than that presented by a genuine Philharmonic audience in the Brooklyn Academy of Music cannot be found elsewhere. The city of churches has always been noted for its pretty girls, whose tastes for the fine arts generally, and music especially, have by no means detracted from their natural as well as cultured proficiency in the mysterious ways of a first-class toilette, and with all pretty girls, the attendance invariable upon the doings of the Philharmonic Orchestra, is a prime article in the orthodox creed. The programme was an unusually strong one, presenting two of the most popular orchestral pieces: BEETHOVEN'S Fifth Symphony, and MENDELSSOHN'S "Midsummer Night's Dream," besides BERLIOZ'S overture, "Carnaire," which was given for the first time in America. The soloists were Mme. GUERRABELLA, BERGEN and Wm. MASON. The Symphony was rendered with absolute fidelity, and with a delicacy of expression for which this orchestra has become noted; the "Midsummer Night's Dream" was rapturously applauded, and the "Carnaire," which is most spirited, and suggestive of much nervous action on the part of the "black-bearded gentleman," was received with all due honor. Mme. GUERRABELLA won sympathy on account of her superb personal appearance and her too perceptible cold, but failed to elicit the usual Philharmonic encore demonstration, save in the bridal from "Macbeth," "Si calmi il cielo!" which she gave with something approaching her usual power of vocalization. Mr. MASON gave only SCHUMANN'S Fantasia for the piano, and though vociferously called for a second rendition did not refavor the audience. BERGEN, the violoncellist, is well known to all frequenters of these concerts, either in this City or Brooklyn, as a faithful, conscientious and capable artist. In "SERVAIS'" concerto for the violoncello he gave evidence of his right to the popular verdict of "a splendid player." Mr. THEO. THOMAS was the conductor, alternating during the season with Mr. ERNZLE. As a whole, the concert was a great success, and formed one of a long series of musical feasts afforded the public of Brooklyn by the enterprise and judicious catering of the directors of the Philharmonic Society.

The announcements of the various places of amusement for to-night are as follows: At Wallack's Miss MORANT'S benefit, as above referred to; at Laura Keene's, Mrs. WOOD in the "Fair One with Golden Locks;" at the Winter Garden, SHERMAN KROWER'S play of "Love;" at Niblo's, the successful operatic spectacle of "Satanella;" at Barnum's Museum, the Comedy of "Time Tries All;" at the theatre Français, (to-morrow evening,) the admirable comedy of "Les Pattes de Mouche."

In the way of music two excellent concerts are announced; the first, to-night, for the benefit of a pleasing tenor, Mr. GUSTAV SCHREIN; the second, to-morrow evening, for the benefit and farewell appearance of Miss CARLOTTA PATTI. Both entertainments take place at Irving Hall, and both are remarkable for the admirable programmes that are provided.

Miss MATILDA HERON will give a single performance at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, on Wednesday next, when the drama of "Edith" will be played.

The public will be glad to hear that Miss RAYNEMAN has recovered from her late severe indisposition. Her speedy reappearance will be hailed with general satisfaction.

The Miasma and foul vapors generated by the hot sun will be far more deadly to our volunteers than the enemy's bayonets.
